GOVERNMENT authorities indict 17 doctors, 32 druggists.

Doctors sold whisky prescriptions to druggists at $5 each. Every three months the doctor gets 100 prescriptions from the government. Some doctors sold a whole book as cheap as $200, owners got $500 for a book. The druggists sold $20 worth of whisky to a prescription.

This prescription business in New York amounts to about $15,000,000 a year. Prohibition is profitable, although not yet exactly practical.

A SCIENTIST says he can prove anatomically that lower animals are included in our physical makeup. They are certainly included in our spiritual machinery. One lady calls another a viper, one child calls another a pig.

In character we are as far apart as hyenas and white rabbits.

FOR instance, little Jimmy Mills was sexton of [illegible] opal church in New Brunswick that had for pastor the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall.

The Rev. Hall knew Mrs. Mills too well. They were not cautious, and when they met under the crab apple tree somebody murdered them.

LITTLE JIMMY MILLS lost his wife, whom he liked, and now he cooks for the children. But he says, "I don't know who did it, but, whoever it was, I don't want him or her killed. The only thing that hurts my feelings is that Mrs. Hall doesn't speak to me any more."

HOD different from the mental attitude of the murderer or murderess that killed the clergyman and Mrs. Mills, who sang in his choir. How do you explain psychically the fact that Mrs. Hall, who lost a husband, does not speak to Jimmy Mills, who lost his wife in the same calamity?

DISTANCE lends indifference. Three thousand Chinese are drowned by the rising of the Yangtze river. 2,000 square miles are inundated, many must starve.

But China is on the other side of the earth, so that news means little to us.

If we heard that some great body in space, billions of miles away, had

RECORDS FALL AS MISS EDERLE REACHES SHORE IN 14 1-2 HOURS

New York Lass Termed "Supreme Woman Athlete."

STANDS TRIP WELL

Plans Visit to Germany Before Return to States.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 7.—Gertrude Ederle, the American girl whose feat of swimming the English channel in faster time than any of her male predecessors is now history, awoke at 9 o'clock this morning after less than seven hours of sleep, radiant and refreshed and showing no signs of her fourteen hours and thirty-one minute swim from Cape Gris Nez to King's Down, near Deal.

Retires at 2:45 a. m.

Miss Ederle got to bed at 2:45 o'clock this morning after a gay supper party in the Grand hotel. There she had been toasted and hailed as the world's "supreme woman athlete of today and all time."

The loyal group which superintended the girl's training did not abandon their duties even though the channel crossing is now a thing of the past, but insisted on a thorough massage before they would permit her to retire. Her sleep was deep and apparently refreshing.

Except for a slight twinge in the left knee the New York girl showed no ill effects of the long swim. The absence of muscular ache was attributed to the massage she had received.

Miss Ederle was the cynosure for all eyes on the beach today and she attracted a great crowd as she came from the water after a ten minute swim.

"She is relaxing her muscles," "Pop" Ederle explained as those near him marveled at the girl's return so soon after her gruelling battle.

"You swim that channel twice more, Gertie, and we'll give it to you," an

TOURED WORLD

Entered Navy During Early Part of 1917.

Dr. Leon Frost, a lieutenant-commander with the United States Navy, left today for Washington, D. C., where he will enter the Naval Dental school for a six months' course after a two weeks' visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frost, Smithfield street, and other relatives.

Commander Frost, who was reared in East Liverpool, has been in the naval service about 10 years. He enlisted during the early part of 1917 shortly after his graduation as a dentist from George Washington University in Washington, D. C. He has traveled around the world since joining Uncle Sam's forces.

Shortly after his enlistment, Dr. Frost was stationed on the U. S. S. Nevada and the New Jersey. He was sent to Europe during the latter part of 1917, remaining abroad for about three and one-half years. He was stationed in France during the World War, being on shore duty in Bordeaux, Brest and for a while in Paris, where he was attached to the American embassy.

Was Stationed in Dalmatia.

Following the armistice, he was sent to Spalato, capital of Dalmatia, one of the Balkan states on the Adriatic. While there, two former Austrian-Hungarian battleships were turned over to allied forces pending the decision of the peace conference. One of these ships, which were of the larger type, was placed in charge of the American navy. Dr. Frost and a force of 35 men kept guard on this vessel for seven months. The ship was later turned over to the Italian government who ordered that it be scrapped.

After a short stay in America, Dr. Frost was sent to Manila, where he remained one year. He than was ordered to the Orient where he was attached to the American embassy at Peking for about a year and a half. While in China he was with a force of 300 marines.

The appeal case of John H. Fultz, Wellsville's chief of police until his suspension by Mayor W. L. Fogo on March 19, last, will open on Monday, August 16, before Judge W. H. Spence in common pleas court at Lisbon.

Upon announcement of the date by Judge Spence, Clerk Frank Ballantine immediately notified Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, of counsel for the defense, and City Solicitor Samuel C. Luccock, of the assignment.

Fultz's case first was tried before the Wellsville civil service commission which upheld Mayor Fogo in his removal action.

The trial before the commission was spread out over a several weeks' period and a large number of witnesses were called by both sides, the case attracting consideration attention throughout the district.

Immediately after the commission's decision, in which each of the 12 charges made by Mayor Fogo was taken up separately, Fultz appealed to common pleas court.

Filed with his petition in appeal were 14 different papers concerning the case, beginning with the order of suspension issued by Mayor Fogo, these papers having been filed by Grattan V. Dugan, secretary of the Wellsville commission.

In the court fight the city will be represented by Solicitor Samuel Luccock and Attorney Charles Boyd.

Fultz will have as counsel W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and Frank E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool.

SEVERE STORM HITS CLEVELAND

Streets Flooded by Cloudburst Along Lake Front.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7.—Central viaduct was closed to all traffic today, many cellars were water filled, numerous washouts were in evidence along the city's thoroughfares and streets were littered with broken limbs and leaves as the result of an unusually severe rain storm that swept the city last night. It was accompanied by vivid electrical display and high wind. The downpour was the heaviest in years, 1.66 inches of rain coming down in 30 minutes.

Central viaduct was closed because of a cave in due to wash out.

Hundreds of motorists were stalled all over the city. Street car service was tied up on Payne avenue, Central avenue, Scovill avenue, St. Clair avenue and East 105th street because of washouts, crippled wires or flooded tracks.

Three houses were struck by lightning bolts.

Police and firemen received many calls as drivers of cars got stuck in deep pools. In many instances the water reached above the fenders and poured into the inside of automobiles.

Trainer Claims Girl Was Advised To Leave Water

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 7.—Gertrude Ederle alone deserves the credit for her record breaking trans-channel swim, for William Burgess, the veteran swimmer and trainer, admitted today that twice during the gruelling battle against the channel he advised Miss Ederle to give up the attempt.

Burgess said that at noon he felt that the American girl was failing and he advised her to leave the water, but she shook her head and swam on. Again at six o'clock in the evening, Burgers said he urged "Trudy" to leave the water, but again she shook her head.

HEALTHERS ACT ON COMPLAINTS

Halt Storing of Garbage and Rubbish in Potters Alley.

A garbage and rubbage nuisance, which is said to have existed in Potters alley next to the City Market house, St. Clair avenue, in recent weeks, was ordered abated by the board of health, yesterday.

According to the demands of the health board garbage from the Market house must be placed in covered cans to be emptied by the garbage collector at least once daily. Boxes, crates and other refuse matter is to be stored in the basement of the building and also removed daily. The use of the alley near the side door of the Market house for the dumping of rubbish and other refuse matter must be discontinued.

The board has also launched a campaign to halt the removal of garbage by persons other than the licensed garbage collector, P. Milliron. Many of the down town store keepers, it is claimed have been employing expressmen to remove garbage at reduced rates over that charged by Mr. Milliron, who has a contract with the health board for the collection of garbage. Merchants and expressmen who engage in this business will be prosecuted, board officials declare.

Vote for Fred George, Republican, for county treasurer. Primaries Aug. 10th.

117 CANDIDATES SEEK NOMINATIONS FOR STATE, DISTRICT AND COUNTY OFFICES AT REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES TUESDAY

One hundred and seventeen candidates—79 Republicans and 38 Democrats—are seeking party nominations for state, district and county offices at next Tuesday's primaries.

On the Republican ticket there is contest for every office with the exception of judge of the court of appeals, representative to congress, clerk of common pleas court, recorder, prosecuting attorney and coroner. In addition to the county offices, the Democrats have no contests for state senator, congress or judge of the court of appeals.

Twelve candidates are in the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Eleven are seeking the nomination for lieutenant governor.

For secretary of state there are three Republican entries, while eight seek the G. O. P. nomination for state treasurer. The attorney generalship has attracted four candidates, while Frank B. Willis is being opposed for a second term as United States senator by seven other candidates. Carrington T. Marshall has no opposition for chief justice of the supreme court. The two present members of the supreme court whose terms expire this year are out for re-election, being opposed by two others.

Chief interest in the county ticket is in the Republican race for the nomination for county treasurer in which Fred Eckfeld, Wellsville; Fred George, East Liverpool, and C. H. Hoopes, of Kensington, are the candidates. Another race which is attracting attention is that for commissioner in which S. N. Van Blaricom, Salem; T. H. Wilkinson, East Liverpool; John McB. Kerr, Yellow Creek township, and Howard Sinclair, Hanoverton, are the aspirants. Sheriff George Wright is being opposed for re-nomination by David Eells, Lisbon, while ex-Mayor Al Ferren, East Palestine, is opposing Elmer Walker for county auditor.

On the Democratic ticket, the race for governor is a four-cornered fight, with James C. B. Beatty, of this city, as one of the candidates. For lieutenant governor there are five candidates; for secretary of state, four; for state treasurer, two; for attorney general, four; for United States senator, three; for chief justice of the supreme court, two; for member of the supreme court, two; for member of the state central committee, three, and for state senator, one.

The Democrats have candidates in the field for state representative, sheriff, commissioner, auditor, treasurer, recorder, coroner, clerk of common pleas court or prosecuting attorney.

In addition to selecting party nominees electors will vote on a proposed amendment to the constitution which "authorizes assessment by municipalities of the cost of acquiring property for public improvement upon lands benefited thereby."

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

380. If Christ had not been raised from the dead would even dead Christians be raised to life?

Answer: No; they would be "perished"—that is, utterly dead forever. See 1 Corinthians 15:17, 18.

381. Did God raise Jesus from the dead?

Answer: Yes. See Acts 4:10; 13:30, 34; Rom. 4:24.

382. Was Christ really dead?

Answer: See Revelation 1:18.

383. What is meant in Isaiah 53:12 when it says "He hath poured out His soul unto Death?"

Answer: Jesus gave up His being as a man, and became actually dead until "God raised Him from the dead" to a higher plane of life, even the divine plane. See Acts 4:10; Philippians 2:9-11.

384. Why did Jesus "pour out His soul (Being) unto death?"

Answer: Because He "made His soul (being) an offering for sin" — the sin of Adam — so that He might call from death. See Isa. 53:10; John 5:28, 29; Hos. 13:14.

385. Did Jesus call the death of Lazarus a sleep?

Answer: Yes. See John 11:11-14.

386. Did Jesus call Lazarus down from heaven?

Answer: No. Jesus called him "forth" from the tomb. See John 11:43, 44.

DUHRSSEN HITS COPS, JUDGES

Decal Agent Makes Explanation of His Arrest.

Alfred Duhrssen, Orchard Grove avenue, who is president of the Decalcomnia Products company, yesterday addressed a statement to the Review-Tribune in explanation of a fine of $40.60 meted out by Municpal Judge J. C. Haney Thursday on two charges—careless and reckless driving and disorderly conduct by using abusive and insulting language to a police officer.

Duhrssen, according to police, became abusive in his language after he was arrested on Sixth street Wednesday afternoon by Fairolman Norman McFarland on a charge of driving his automobile over a fire hose in front of the St. Clair avenue fire station. The second allegation was preferred because of his alleged conduct when the warrant was read and, later, when he was taken to municipal court headquarters to arrange for bond. He spent more than an hour in jail before he was released in $300 bond, signed by Dale Thompson.

Duhrssen's signed statement follows:

"I am not the only resident of this city who has been subjected to rude and discourteous treatment by local police and a public protest against such treatment might find sufficient response to end eventually this unnecessary rudeness in enforcing the petty traffic regulations which overburden this city.

"I question if any ordinance exists which would forbid my driving over a fire hose when not in use and I believe that anyone would resent being discourteously hailed and arrested for such a reason. The indignation expressed by me contained more than a tinge of sarcasm, but not one profane or abusive word escaped me, however great the provocation. Neither did I say or imply that I had no use for policemen, firemen or anyone in uniform. Any statement to the contrary is a deliberate falsehood, but they were bound to get me and did.

"The usual advice under such circumstances is to pay your fine and shut up, whether or not there is any legal basis for imposing the fine. This attitude does not happen to appeal to me and therefore I am doubly penalized.

"I would be glad to subscribe to a fund for the inculcation of civility into cops and a sense of justice into judges, but I fear it would be hopeless.

"Yours truly,

"A. DUHRSSEN."

"Old Trail," Once Impossibiilty, Rapidly Becoming Real Highway

"They Said is Couldn't be Done" But Men's Brains and Machinery are Conquering Famous "Narrows."

Man and machine are transforming what for years resembled little more than a trail into a wide and important thoroughfare and a visit to the "narrows" section of the Ohio river road between Port Homer and Yellow Creek reveals that what for years was said to be an impossibility is now about to become a reality,—a highway hewn through solid rocks at the highest point where the "old trail" traffic could not pass.

A practical demonstration on "the way to accomplish a thing is to do it" is seen daily as men and machinery blast and dig their way through the "narrows" where skeptics doubted and a backward citizenship declared "it couldn't be done" and let it go at that.

The treacherous piece of highway that held its terrors for travel to such an extent that it was rarely used is now being widened for permanent improvement that will be a part of the river highway from East Liverpool to Bellaire in this immediate vicinity but which opens up untold highway possibilities and advantages far and beyond.

"They said it couldn't be done" but man's brains and determination, motor trucks, giant shovels and dynamite are blasting, and cutting their way steadily but surely along the ledge that leads down a gradual slope towards Yellow Creek as the largest and most difficult piece of engineering in the entire Port-Homer-Yellow Creek section.

Progress Amazes Visitors.

Visitors to the "narrows" improvement yesterday were amazed at the progress made by the state highway department's men and machinery in opening up this piece of highway that has for years been a barrier to river road progress. It has been a physical obstacle the size of which has frightened road builders to such an extent that Jefferson county has been backward in opening up one of its greatest assets—the river road.

Today the "old trail," as some have termed it, is being transformed from a narrow, dangerous, almost unused road into a wide, substantial highway that will take its place in the river highway system that is the dream of those whose vision has brought about the gigantic river road improvement project.

A visit to the scene of operations along the narrow trail is convincing that somebody means business. A huge steam shovel is eating its way through a hill of rock at the extreme northern end of the "narrows" project. Earth and rock loosened from the hill is being thrown into low places in the general widening scheme and the ground work is being laid for a permanent, improved highway through a magnificent country heretofore unrevealed to the motorist.

Work was started in 1925 on the widening process. The state highway department began over a year ago to lay the ground work for improvement of the Port Homer-Yellow creek section. With the general river road improvement in view, the "narrows" section loomed as one of the largest obstacles. Backed by demands of a citizenship whose vision saw untold advantage for Jefferson county and the Ohio valley as well, and promises of county aid for the project, the state lost no time in beginning its operations at the "narrows" with the result that such excellent progress has been made that the river road enthusiasts now feel happy over the outlook for the improved road within the next year or two, at least with a hard surface of some type to permit through travel.

Make Tremendous Fills.

Beginning at a railroad crossing near Port Homer the engineering activity has been extended and varied. A tremendous fill has been made along the railroad tracks where a sharp turn has been eliminated and a narrow, winding road along and around a hill will be done entirely away with, cutting the distance at that point almost a quarter of a mile. Just beyond the fill along the railroad is a huge cut, the earth and rock being used for making fills. A large part of the highway south of the very narrowest point along the high ledge nearly to Yellow creek has been widened and partially graded, a task that has not proven difficult owing to the fact that it was largely through level, soft ground. Numerous large fills have been made along the river side of the road with rock hewn from the precipitous banks by the steam shovel.

Dynamite is being freely used in the splitting of rock at the narrowest and highest point about one mile south of Yellow Creek. The steam shovel proceeds slowly but surely as a small army of trucks steadily haul away rock and earth for fills at various points along the construction. Nearly a half-mile of rocky hillside must still be removed but there is every evidence that the work is going on steadily to remove every barrier in the way of an ultimate improved river highway.

Victory Not Far Off.

The Ohio river road will come into its own when the "narrows" section is opened, in the belief of those who have been most active toward the improvement. Persons of vision who for years have seen the advantages of a continuous Ohio river road look upon the mighty operations at the "narrows" with a smile of satisfaction. Victory seems assured as man and machinery rip their way through physical barriers which only a few years ago seemed impossible to penetrate.

What is being done at the "narrows" might have been done years ago and the present generations might have been deriving the benefit of the road through a magnificent country over which tourists in future years will marvel and which for years has impeded Ohio river progrress in many more ways man one. Jefferson county will receive the direct benefit from the highway completion but the entire valley from Columbiana county to points far to the south will also be handsomely rewarded.

A visit to the "narrows" operations is a certain cure for those "highway blues" and leaves one with a happy anticipation that the Ohio river highway completion is "just around the corner." A mass movement, with every element of civic betterment working shoulder to shoulder, will accomplish it.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1926.

Poor Judgment, Council men

East Liverpool's municipal council members evidently are unmindful of the appalling annual toll of human life, not to mention injuries, exacted by fireworks, for, by a vote of 6 to 1, they have removed all restrictions on the use of pyrotechnics within the limits of the corporation.

Failing to heed the lessons taught by frightful accidents which prompted prohibitory legislation in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Akron and scores of other cities, the solons have declared July 4, 1927—and probably a week or two before Independence Day—an open season for killings, maimings and fires by reason of their action in overriding Mayor Benedum's veto of the repealer.

In stead of strengthening the fireworks ban by an amendment to prohibit the sale of explosives as well as their discharge within the city limits, six of the seven councilmen followed the easiest course—appeal to the silly sentiment that "it does not seem like the Fourth without fireworks."

However, if the legislative dads had given a little more study to statistics on fatalities in the United States—and East Liverpool has figured in the reports—it is a safe wager they would not have voted as they did Thursday night.

Is too much to expect a change of mind on the part of councilmen during the next 11 months?

Courtesy to Americans

England, unlike France, is not making hostile demonstrations against American tourists, but is trying to attract and hold them. The government is co-operating in this effort with the hotel and transportation interests.

Some of the methods adopted suggest a sort of enterprise which we usually think of as American rather than British. Mayors throughout Great Britain have been asked to prepare publicity matter setting forth the attractions of their cities and surroundings.

Britain wants to get more of the tourist money that is now spent in France. From present indications, she is likely to succeed. When the French make things unpleasant for Americans, Americans naturally stop going there; and if there is any other country that interests the average American as much as France, it is England.

The British have their grievances, real or imaginary, against America, as the French have. But they are less disposed to show them in public, or get excited about them. The British are better able than the French to discuss a difference of opinion dispassionately and impersonally. There may be debate among statesmen, and journalists, and unpleasant flings in some of the British newspapers, but there is no mobbing on the street and little or no evidence of personal dislike shown to tourists going decently about their own affairs.

It will doubtless be found by our European friends that courtesy is a business asset to a nation no less than to a private enterprise.

Needless Detours

"If a trunk line railroad can assemble a steel trestle and slip it into place between trains without interfering with traffic," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "it ought to be possible for the highway department to manage an ordinary road job without sending motorists miles out of their way on detours. It depends primarily on how much the responsible authority cares."

Motorists who have suffered from long and difficult detours will endorse that statement most heartily. An occasional detour is necessary, but it should be made passable before the main road is shut off. That should be part of the contract. Detours should be as short and as good as possible. To go eight or 10 miles out of the way on rough roads to give the road makers the use of a few hundred feet of exclusive roadway at a time seems hardly necessary. To the tourist in Ontario, every road seems at all times to be under repair. But the sign "Drive Slow, Men at Work," a thousand feet ahead of the machinery, coupled with a little courtesy on the part of motorists, one of whom must wait for the other on the narrow by-pass, seems to be all that is needed in most cases.

Midsummer in Wall Street

Sales on the stock exchange lately have been breaking all records for midsummer. And they are not, as might be expected at this time of year, "bear" sales. It is a "bull" movement. Stocks in general have risen. Certain stocks, particularly automobile, steel and railroad stocks, have had a phenomenal rise.

This is a natural and obvious reflection of prosperity, which is all the more impressive when it comes as a substitute for the usual seasonal dullness and pessimism.

There is an element of gambling in it; but the strong, steady rise in such securities shows a strengthening faith in the American economic situation and a belief that business in general is not only sound and profitable now but is entering upon an era of greater scope and profit.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—It has been more than 30 years since Ward McAllister passed to his reward and in all those intervening years there has arisen no social Machiavelli to tweak the upper crust's proboscis and censor its guest list.

Social leadership expired with McAllister. A few have grasped the reins and galloped away, only to come cropper at the first hurdle. Society no longer wants a leader. Those who have tried it soon learn the pack will not follow.

Ward McAllister was a curious mixture for the part he played. He was not a fastidious dresser. In fact he appeared rather shabby in his neglected frock coat. He was plump, with mild blue eyes and an imperial graced his chin. He was once mistaken for one of those itinerant magicians.

He was not by any means wealthy. He came from an impoverished Savannah, Ga., family, who traced origin back to the Huguenots. He had studied law, but showed no great gifts as a disciple of Blackstone. Indeed when he lost leadership synical society sniffed: "We have merely discharged our cook."

While he did show an aptitude for fashioning culinary wonders, McAllister was more than a cook. He had high ideals and fine manners. He was a gentleman of what we are now pleased to call "the old school." The slightest show of vulgarity in manners, dress or food left him cold.

He had odd notions about this and that. He thought shaking hands bad form. A dinner without ladies was no dinner at all. A gentleman did not imbibe more than one cocktail before dinner. Stout men were ridiculous in white weskits.

He drew up the famous list of four hundred for Mrs. Astor's ball, which gave society this appellative enduring to this day. He died disappointed and discredited by those he had led. Money had begun to invoke its social power and Victorianism had become a jest. Social aspirants were changing their names and crashing the gate.

There are still those in Doyers street in Chinatown who believe in the legend of that short, winding thoroughfare running off the hip of Chatham Square. In the basement of a rickety old house at No. 3, built by Antony Doyer, from whence the street acquired its name, is supposed to be buried $35,000,000 in gold. Scores have dug for it at odd times. Claimants have appeared from all over the world. Doyers, like Mott and Pell streets, no longer bubbles with life. It is usually forlorn and deserted. Most of New York's 20,000 Chinese make Newark their home and playground. Those who know say that the only semblance of the old Chinatown remaining is maintained by syndicates operating sightseeing busses. Doyers street at one period was considered the wickedest street in town by police. It had more gambling houses, brothels, opium dens and sawdust joints to the square foot than any other area in the metropolis.

It seems that about the only thing Chinatown is used for these days is as the place to mention that Irving Berlin got his start.

No doubt Berlin is a little weary of hearing of his early days in the saloon back room. I have met at least a hundred men who claim to have pitched him nickles.

Next to Berlin, more legends were built up about Bert Williams, the Negro actor, and his shyness than almost anyone on Broadway. I remember one that he never appeared on Broadway save to go to the theatre. Several days later I saw him in a big red dragon of a car that dazzled even blase Times Square. He wore a canary yellow camel's hair and was splitting the street wide open.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Trade With China.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—Years of revolutions and civil wars which have brought political chaos to China have not destroyed the industry or productivity of the people of China, but have seriously interrupted their ability to buy and distribute imported goods, according to reports of the United States Department of Commerce, which keeps a close account of the trade of the United States in the Far East, and also keeps track of the general trade of Asiatic countries. This explains the fact that while American exports to China fell off seriously in 1925 and are not so good this year, our imports from China held their own in most lines and greatly increased as to raw silk.

Frank R. Eldridge chief of the Far Eastern Division of the Department of Commerce and a close student of Chinese affairs, is convinced that perhaps no country except China could keep going under the chaotic conditions of government prevailing there. The stoicism of the Chinese race, and its long experience with poor government, has enabled it to carry on, after a fashion, with really no national government at all.

Hence while American trade with China is not prospering as it should, British trade with China is being ruined and only Japan is making real headway with trade there, the Chinese people go on producing and exporting their product and doing without imports which can not get by the various political barriers

The latest shift in lines of power among the war lords who have cut China up into practically separate kingdoms will not greatly alter trade conditions, and may even better them, in the belief of the Commerce Department observers. By this new shift a group of five Pacific Coast provinces, centering on Shanghai, have been confederated under the power of Sun Chuan-fang, who previously controlled only Kiangsu, the province in which Shanghai is located. Sun thus becomes fifth in number but among the first in power among the war lords.

Understands Foreign Trade.

His coup d'etat centers on the city which has been the great trade center of China, especially since Canton has lost her foreign trade through repeated revolutions, and Sun has been ruling in Shanghai with a wise understanding that foreign trade is the life of his city. By adding the other coast provinces south of Shantung and north fo Canton to his zone of control he may actually increase the facilities of foreign trade. The ports of Ningpo and Foochow are added to his domain.

If he continues to respect the treaties of the old central government the traders from this country may gain ground by his increased power. Fully ninety per cent of recent American trade with China has been with Shanghai and with the Manchurian zone to the north, which is reached through the Japanese controlled port., Dairen and over Japanese controlled railways. Japan has a strong hand in the reign of Chang Tso-Lin, war lord of Manchuria.

We have very little trade at present with Canton, which after every sort of government from monarchy to bolshevism has fallen under control of Chiang Kai-shek. Much of the decrease from 108 to 93 millions in our exports to China last year is represented by the rapid decline of Canton as a distributing center. The other two zones into which China is now cut, Yunnan in the south and the scattered area of the center controlled by Wu Pei-fu, have never been sources of direct buying in quantity from the United States.

These great inland areas are now almost cut off from imports by the likin charges set up by various war lords and municipalities. Likin is a local tariff assessed on all goods in transit, and collected off everything from a trainload to a wheelbarrow by local authorities. There are now more than 1,000 likin stations in China, and last year they collected $60,000,000 which is of record, regardless of graft. Worse than that, they prevented more trade than they collected from.

This interruption of trade accounts in great part for the fact that American flour, for example, was shipped to China to the extent of only 220,000 barrels in 1925, whereas, 1,246,000 barrels were sold there in 1924. Kerosene and cigarettes, two of our chief exports to China, declined in large measure, and so it was with other articles of wide use by the common people. Our copper exports to China almost disappeared, lumber and agricultural machinery fell off, and only cotton among our major exports showed a gain. If the new czar of the East Coast of China chacses the likin stations a bit farther inland, trade may pick up over that much area.

While American trade with China has declined as to exports and the American salesman is having hard sledding, the British are in a much worse predicament. Bolshevist propaganda has created what amounts to a boycott against British goods, Hong Kong is in the doldrums, and the British with investments of about half a billion dollars in China are doing little more business than the Americans, whose commercical interests there involve probably one-tenth that investment.

Japan Benefits Chiefly.

Japan is said to be the chief beneficiary from the British boycott. To some extent this boycott extends to all imported goods and is part of the bolshevist theory of anti-capitalism. Unhappily for China her people do not produce substitutes for the goods they refuse to buy from foreign sources. They merely go without. How long

WHY DRAG IT OUT?

The president of one of our largest railroads has always enjoyed life and the living of it. He has ever favored good things to eat and plenty of them, good things to drink and more of the same, long black, strong cigars to smoke and a box full handy.

Until he reached middle age and had progressed a trifle beyond it, his customary modes seemed to agree with him. But about a year ago his health rather failed him. At least, he developed nerves and curious sensations.

In the midwestern city where he lives he had the best available medical advice. But treatment, as locally applied, did not seem to help him any. The annoying and alarming symptoms persisted.

So in the fall he packed up and went to New York. Arriving there he summoned three of the leading diagnosticians in stomach troubles. These high priced scientists came to him, equipped with small black bags. They examined the sufferer thoroughly. They asked him countless questions—all about his diet, his habits, his family history, his emotions, sensations, feelngs, lkes and dslikes. Then they withdrew for a consultation.

After the lapse fo an hour they reentered his presence. The oldest specialist acted as spokesman.

"Mr. Blank," he said, "my confreres and I have considered your case from every standpoint. I now give you our delibate judgment. You must cut out those thick steaks and rishrdlnunununukschrdlnu been eating; you must cut out black coffee and heavy cigars; above all things, you must cut out all alcoholic stimulant. You must alter your plan of life altogether—live hereafter on the strictest and simplest of diets, refrain from smoking, avoid all exertion and all excitement, go to bed every night at 9 o'clock and get up every morning at 6."

"And if I should do all these things which you gentlemen recommend—what then?" asked the railroader.

"In that event you should live at least five years."

Mr. Blank took a deep breath.

"What for?" he asked.

URGES PRIMARY SYSTEM CHANGE

Democratic Newspaper at Newark Approves Proposal.

The following comment on the proposal to abolish the present primary system in Ohio is of particular significance inasmuch as it represents the view of a Democratic newspaper, the Newark (O.) Advocate:

"During the past few days hundreds of Newark people have signed petitions asking for a referendum in November amending the primary election law. The sponsors for this action declare that it is a movement to get better men in public office. The proposal keeps all the safeguards of the present law, but insures party responsibility and provides for the selection of candidates of by convention.

"A clear explanation of the proposition is made by Charles L. Knight, publisher of The Akron Beacon-Journal, who tells the purposes of the proposal in this language:

"The amendment is so simple that it speaks for itself. The present constitutional provision compels all nominations to be made by primary elections. The proposed amendment would give to the legislature the power to say how such nominations are authorized by convention, the delegate must be elected by a direct vote of the people. This safeguards to the people every right and protection that now exists under the primary, makes it impossible to return to the old caucus system and yet makes possible state conventions at which duly elected delegates can make nominations for state offices.

"Under this amendment the state legislature can retain the direct primary for the nomination of congressmen and county officials shall be nominated by a convention whose delegates have been selected by the people to a primary.

"To state the thing in another way, it is proposed to give back to the legislature the power to make such rules and regulations as it may see fit in providing for the nomination of state, district and county officials, but it can provide no method without giving to the people a chance in a primary to select their own delegates to any convention which may be held.

"Back of the movement there are no motives except the desire to reestablish responsible party government and correct the dangerous condition that the direct primary has brought upon us. Under this system the man of moderate means can no longer seek a state office unless he is willing to have some person or interest finance his campaign.

"The expenditure of vast sums of money at each primary has become a necessity. One may object to this bad principle and yet if he hopes to make any progress, he must conform to it. Incidentally such a system will lead to the gross abuses that have recently occurred in other states.

"Any system of selecting candidates for office which puts a premium, on wealth, drives the poor man out of politics or compels him to seek financial assistance from those who seldom give it unless through the expectation of being amply repaid at the people's expense, is dangerous and highly subverse of honest representative government.

"No laws can regulate any such situation. Corrrupt practice acts we have in abundance and yet, as every one knows they are violated with impunity at every election."

Still, even those who rise above the common level can remain on the level. —Defiance Crescent-News.

Another Little Message

about that cup of sugar

RECENTLY we suggested that the essentials of the true spirit of neighborliness were exemplified in the borrowing of a cup of sugar.

Over the back-yard fence is a short cut indeed, to neighborliness. Miles so often are the fences that divide the common ground of mutual understanding and good will. The less the distance, the lower the fence.

That's one reason why we've always worked so earnestly and faithfully for better roads. The road that brings you nearer to us is the same broad highway that brings us nearer to you. Literally and figuratively it increases efficiency in the delivery of the goods. Another essential to the true spirit of neighborliness.

You'll find the same spirit at this end of the road—in our stores and places of business. Courtesy, desire to please, eagerness to rectify error, sincerity in quality, fairness in price—these are the elements of neighborly dealing which we are constantly striving to improve.

Just call across the fence. We're neighbors, you know.

Thank you.

Over the span of months and miles, in the hands of thousands of owners, Oldsmobile demonstrated its unchallengable right to the now familiar praise . . . "The car you can recommend to your best friend—it asks no favors, fears no road!"

But even that could not satisfy a policy pledged to progress.

Providing even greater power, even longer life, even smoother performance; offering added driving case and security; added qualities of luxury and comfort . . .

. . . the car so firm in public favor is now made better than ever.

BEATTY CLOSES HIS CAMPAIGN

Local Gubernatorial Candidate Speaks at Eagles Hall.

James C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, Democratic gubernatorial aspirant, closed his campaign last night with a meeting in the Eagles' auditorium, Broadway. Approximately 250 persons attended.

Beatty, who was introduced by Ambrose Hancock, secretary of the local aerie of Eagles, after outlining his platform, launched his address by urging the repeal of the Volstead, Miller and Crabbe acts and the eighteenth amendment. He read several passages from the Bible which he told his auditors supported his stand on the liquor question.

Governor Donahey and the telephone company were attacked by the speaker who asserted the former had failed to take steps to halt rate raises in the state. Abolishment of the present pardon board and elimination of 50 per cent of the personnel of the state highway department was promised in the event he was elected governor.

EXPECT HEAVY PRIMARY VOTE

Numerous Contests Expected to Bring Voters to Polls.

COLUMBUS, O, Aug. 7.—"Our vote at the primary this year will be 10 to 20 per cent heavier than in several past years." Democrats opinions:

"We can only say there will be many close contests. We expect a heavier vote than usual at the primary."— Republican consensus of opinions.

Such were the composite statements of all the headquarters of the 88 candidates seeking nomination on the two tickets at next Tuesday primary having offices here today.

Many of the candidates were out of town, adding finishing touches to the campaign waged in the past few weeks. Others were idly resting on their oars, waiting for the returns to start coming in next Tuesday night. And still others were impatiently seeking a little rest at their homes before going out tonight and Monday for last drives to get votes.

To make guesses as to the outcome would be folly, it was generally felt. Each headquarters predicted victory for its standard bearer. But all were satisfied the vote cast this year will surpass many previous primaries.

Many of the individual campaigns have been arduous. With but little of the old styled "mud slinging" there has been much interest shown.

been destroyed, and billions of lives wiped out, that would mean nothing at all. We are provincial.

The strange thing is that China, with half a billion population, labor costing practically nothing, has endured floods and calamities for thousands of years and never found a way to neutralize the floods.

Labor spent on the great Chinese wall to keep out barbarians, and that did not keep them out, would have made the Yangtze safe.

A BRITISH diplomat announces that in the next war, not submarines but airplanes, will terrorize commercial shipping. The order will be "sink at sight," and "the illegality of such attacks will be entirely immaterial."

The accident was believed to have occurred when a car on the freight train buckled, throwing it against the passenger train.

All of the injured were cut by flying glass or bruised by the jarring of the train but were able to continue their journey after their hurts had been dressed by local physicians, railroad employes said.

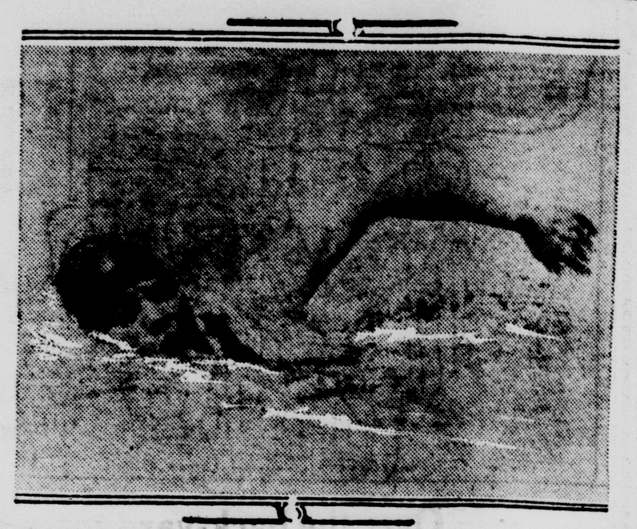
Conquers English Channel



The first woman to swim the treacherous English channel.

A new cross-channel record of 14 hours and 50 minutes, an hour and 35 minutes better than the record made by Sebastian Tiraboschi, native Italian, in 1923.

These are the chief distinctions attending the remarkable feat of Miss Gertrude Ederle, American girl swimmer, who swam the channel yesterday on her first trial of 1926, which she made only a few days following the failure of Clarabelle Barrett, school teacher.

Miss Ederle took off at Cape Gris Nez and landed at Dover. The distance, in a straight line, is 21 miles, but because of the sweep of the tides, Miss Ederle was forced to swim an S-shaped course of between 35 and 40 miles.

Channel Record Falls

Englishman called out to Miss Ederle as she left the water.

"I feel well enought to swim right back to Cape Griz Nez but I'm not going to," Miss Ederle replied.

Returns to France.

The Ederle party will leave for France on the 4 o'clock boat today, landing at Boulogne where the mayor has informed "Pop" Ederle that he would like to extend to Gertrude an official welcome on Monday.

Miss Ederle plans to spend a week in Paris and then she will go to Germany with "Pop" to visit "Pop's" mother. She plans to leave for New York on the Berengaria on August 21.

Today she was flooded with cablegrams from the United States, France, England and other parts of the world. Many of the messages invited her to attend banquets and offered parades and public demonstrations, leading athletes hailed Gertrude as a super-woman and expressed amazement at her history making achievement.

"I have never known a swimmer, either man or woman, with such grit and powers of endurance as Miss Ederle," said William Burgess, the veteran trans-channel swimmer who trained Miss Ederle.

"When half way across the waves were throwing her about like a cork and I naturally wanted to take her out because I feared her life was being endangered. But she was entirely composed throughout, swimming steadily with a crawl stroke whenever the waves permited."

Tells Own Story.
BY GERTRUDE EDERLE.

(As told to an International News Service Correspondent.)

DOVER, ENGLAND, Aug. 7.—It seemed like ages and ages and then all of a sudden I seemed to wake up and found myself within a few feet of the beach.

It seems like a dream now.

I knew I was right a year ago when I said I would swim the English Channel.

The great point in my swimming it at all was to show that a girl could do it and that an American girl could do it and that I was the American girl.

It all seems very far away now. I went to sleep night before last in my hotel in France and I woke up this morning in Dover, but what happened in between seems unreal.

It was worth doing, just to see how pleased papa is. He promised me a motor car if I did it and now I am going to have it.

I got tired soon after the start but somehow it wore off in mid-channel. They tell me I did the first twelve miles at the rate of two miles an hour.

I felt my worst when I got within sight of England. It was a great encouragement at first but it soon became discouraging because it didn't seem to get any nearer. That was bad for me so I didn't look any more but just kept on swimming.

Once when I was going slowly Burgess and papa came out and told me to stop swimming on account of the storm. I said, 'I am not coming out until I am fetched out and you just try and fetch me out.'

It seemed most difficult when I got close to Dover. The tide suddenly changed and a strong current swept me towards Deal. I felt that the sea was pulling me away from England. I thought I had better not look any more but had better go on swimming as long as I could keep alive.

Then it got dark and the sea seemed a lot more comfortable.

By that time the lard, vaseline and oil had pretty nearly all come off and I was beginning to feel cold.

It seemed ages and ages and then all of a sudden I seemed to wake up with a glow of light and find myself within a few feet of the beach with people dancing before bonfires and cheering.

One thing seemed to pull me through. It was the phonograph on the tug playing, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

I went ashore and here I am. Look at papa, how pleased he is, and I am going to get that roadster and I have proved that a girl, an American girl, can swim the channel.

MAN DIES FROM ALKALI BURNS

Check Bank Accounts Of Persons Involved In Hall-Mills Case

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 7.—Bank accounts of all persons involved in the Hall-Mills murders probe were being checked today to determine if "hush money" had been paid to halt prosecution of persons suspected of being guilty of, or accessories to, the crime.

This action was taken by Patrick Hayes, who is working with Senator Simpson, special prosecutor on the case. It was believed that the fiscal "check up" would bring to a head reports that the silence of important witnesses was bought during the original investigation.

Original statements made by Mrs. Frances Hall and Barbara Tough, servant, have disappeared, it was stated today.

Miss Charlotte Mills, daughter of the murdered chorister, said today that she believes the slayer of her mother would soon be known.

"I hope the person goes to the electric chair," she said.

CONEY ISLAND BETTING HALTED

Track Meet to be Closed by Court Order.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7—Use of the pari-mutual system for promotion of race betting at Coney Island race trick will be stopped at 7 o'clock tonight by temporary injunction granted early today. It is presumed the Coney meet will be closed, as was that at Thistledown, Cleveland, since operators of the track here have indicated it would be useless to run the races without the betting.

Decision was sent by telegram early today to Clerk of Courts Frank Lewis, from Judge Louis V. Houck, Mt. Vernon, who presided in the special court of appeals which heard the case against the track operators. Judge Houck had communicated by telephone with other members of the special court to get the decision.

The special court, appointed by state court of appeals Judge Wade Cushing consisted, in addition to Judge Houck, of Louis T. Farr, Lisbon, and W. H. Middleton, Waverly, Ohio.

The trio withheld their decision on the injunction and "quo warranto" instituted by Hamilton county prosecutor Charles S. Bell against Coney Island, until after Supreme Court Judge Marshall issued his edict against the Cleveland club.

OHIO LICENSE WAR FEARED

Truck Owners Notified They Must Purchase Kentucky License.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 7. — With notice served on owners of commercial motor vehicles in Cincinnati that a new Kentucky law requiring such vehicles to carry Kentucky, as well as Ohio, license plates will be rigidly enforced beginning next week, a bitter inter-state battle looms.

Cincinnati merchcants, the Cincinnati Automobile club and motorists in general are preparing to fight the issue. Already it has been taken up with Chalmers R. Wilson, Ohio state registrar. Wilson indicated Ohio will retaliate.

The case may also bring battles with other states bordering on Kentucky, and promises to be a duplication of the struggle between the district of Columbia and New Jersey a short time ago.

Jefferson County Commissioner Run Down by Automobile

PROFILOMETER O. K.'S ROAD JOB

Bumps Few and Small on Patterson Contract.

The report of the profilometer reading on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road recently completed by Contractor George B. Patterson of Wellsville shows but one depression or bump of one half inch. Four depressions registered three-sixteenths of an inch and there were 23 depressions registered of five-sixteenths of one inch. This is declared by state highway officials to be an exceptionally good record for a brick highway.

The profilometer is a machine designed by engineers of the state highway department, and is a machine consisting of 16 bicycle wheels, with pneumatic tires, mounted in tandem.

As the profilometer passes over a road it records on a graph similar to the recording thermometers and is so delicately constructed that depressions and bumps can be recorded over one-fourth inch of space in any ten feet.

MILTON SILLS AT AMERICAN

Thrilling Battle Scenes in Picture, "Puppets."

Thrilling battle scenes, Milton Sills and Francis McDonald battling wildly with each other in a burning theatre with the flaming scenery falling all about them, Gertrude Olmstead standing by watching two men fight for her while the flames threaten their lives—these are but a few of the thrills that will be seen in First National's latest photoplay, "Puppets," which comes next week to the American theatre. Sills has the stellar role, with Miss Olmstead as his leading lady.

"Puppets" is laid in the heart of New York's lowest East Side and on the battlefields of the World War, and no pains or expense have been spared to give the motion picture public a piece of realism they will long remember. It was produced by Al Rockett, who, with his brother, Ray, produced the great picture, "Abraham Lincoln." It was directed by George Archainbaud, who learned his war realism in France as a fighting officer. Heading the great cast is Milton Sills. Supporting him are Miss Olmstead, Francis McDonald, Matilde Comont, William Ricciardi, Lucien Prival, Nick Thompson and others.

ROAD LOCATION TO BE CHANGED

St. Clair Township Will Benefit Under New Plan.

An application is to be filed with the county commissioners by the trustees of St. Clair township, asking that the former recommendation of the trustees relating to the location of the No. 1 secondary road in that township be changed to the Oak Grove campground road, extending from the Lincoln highway to Cannons Mills.

St. Clair township at this time has not sufficient funds available to take advantage of the $1,000 now in the county treasury under the Green law for secondary road construction, but the trustees have been informed by property owners on this road that they will raise the $1,000 themselves and also pay the assessments levied, in order that the $1,000 now in the county treasury can be used.

This road taps the Lincoln highway 500 feet north of Stop 55 on the Y. & O. railroad and extends eastward to Cannons Mills, where it taps the new East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

Immediately upon receipt of this recommendation by the county commissioners, the latter will then make a similar recommendation for a change to the state highway department.

By this plan, St. Clair township will secure additional mileage improved without any cost to the township unit.

Fred George Seeks County Treasurer's Place at Primaries

Fred George

Fred George, who is a candidate for county treasurer at the primary election next Tuesday, Aug. 10. has been a lifelong Republican. He was born on a farm on the Lincoln Highway in Madison township. He served as income tax collector, and maintained his headquarters in the East Liverpool postoffice, where he made many friends who are now supporting his candidacy for county treasurer.

This schooling fits neatly into his candidacy, as his nomination and election assures a man of high type and experience in this important office.

MILTON CALHOUN GRANTED DIVORCE

In the divorce action of Milton D. Calhoun against his wife, Edna Calhoun, the action being contested, a decree was awarded the plaintiff on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The court has ordered in this case, however, that Calhoun pay his wife $6 per week beginning at once for the support of his minor child, and in addition Mrs. Calhoun has been granted possession of all household goods. Money that may be obtained later from the sale of real estate is to be divided equally between the parties, and the equity in certain real estate in East Liverpool has also been awarded by the court to Mrs. Calhoun.

DEPUTY GAME WARDEN NAMED

Lon W. Boring Appointed to Succeed Late William Toot.

Lon W. Boring, of Lisbon, has been appointed deputy game warden for Columbiana and Mahoning counties, succeeding to the office following a vacancy created by the death some months ago of William Toot.

Mr. Boring was sworn in by Clerk of Courts Ballantine, and went into Mahoning county where he has been assigned by the state department of agriculture to make a special investigation of several cases recently called to the attention of the department.

The appointment was made by Secretary of Agriculture Truax Monday last when Mr. Boring was called to Columbus for a conference.

Contest for this appointment has been rather keen since the death of Mr. Toot. The Department of Agriculture made it plain, however, that only active men would be considered as applicants, and that the age of applicants would prove an important factor in making an appointment.

The Wonderful Overland Story

Do you want a car that will do:
55 flashing, brilliant miles an hour . . . in comfort that will pickup in 21 seconds from 5 to 40 miles an hour that will turn in a 40-foot circle
that will stop in a split second . . .

Then, here's a performance "thrill" you'll never forget

EIGHTEEN months ago we announced a revolutionary new-type car . . . the Overland Six that has become world-famous.

Measured by present demand it is the most successful car of its class ever created.

This car embodies the most advanced engineering practice from both sides of the world.

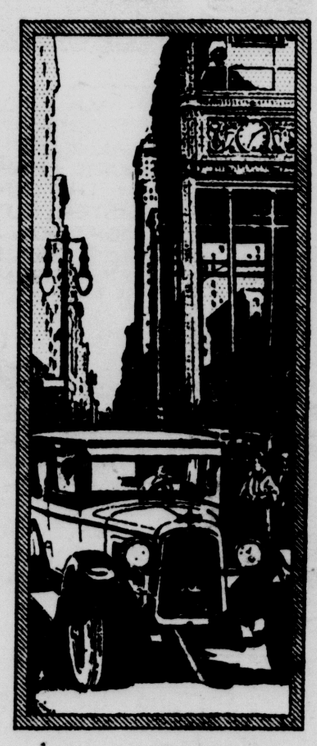
In many respects it is entirely different from conventional automobiles as youknow them.

It is a low car . . . the most powerful of its size and weight . . . based on recent scientific investigations.

40 to 55 miles an hour is its comfortable driving speed.

Acceleration tests show 5 to 40 miles in 21 seconds.

And owners everywhere report hill climbing ability that defies description.



Modern engineering . . . the reason

This wonderful performance ability of the Overland Six is the direct result of modern engineering.

It is new all through. Brilliantly designed as a unit. Not an old-fashioned reconstructed chassis.

Many cars have been "modern" too long. We mean just what we imply.

Remember, the comfort, riding quality and power of any automobile are first determined on the drafting board.

Long life starts with engineering.

A car that was designed over 3 or 4 years ago, cannot meet themodern standards of today.

You want performance. You want comfort. You want the long life that only modern engineering can supply.

Then decide today to drive this new-type Overland Six. Already over 100,000 owners have found in it their utmost ideal of what a truly modern car should be.

Simply in fairness to yourself see the Overland Six. May we arrange a demonstration?

NOTE:—4-wheel brakes are furnished at slight extra cost. Other models: Touring, $895; Coupe, $895; DeLuxe Sedan, $1095.

THERE IS NO SATURATION POINT FOR HONEST VALUE

Honest value is a priceless commodity. Every purchaser seeks it, but not always with complete success.

During periods of careful buying he takes unusual pains to find it, and products of inferior merit fail to attract his patronage.

Reports then circulate that the "saturation point" in the automobile market has been reached, when in reality there will NEVER be a saturation point for honest value.

During the first six months of this year, for instance, Dodge Brothers sold 207,115 motor cars and trucks. This represents a gain of 49.3 per cent over the first six months of 1925, and continues Dodge Brothers in the enviable position of THIRD IN THE INDUSTRY.

For the three weeks ending July 17th, 23,862 motor cars and trucks were delivered to customers—an increase of 62.4 per cent over the same period last year, and impressive evidence that Dodge Brothers great sales gain is continuing through the quiet weeks of mid-summer.

The more carefully people investigate and compare, detail by detail, the factors that constitute genuine motor car value, the more inevitably Dodge Brothers market expands, and will continue to expand, year after year.

Laughlin's Fifth Frame Rally Deadlocks Game With Chester

Missed Third Strike Enables McCoy Club to Score Tying Run

Overcome Three-run Lead Held by 1925 Champs in Last Minute Spurt With Babb Tripling and Briggle and Parsons Singling.

WITH the count 5 to 2 against them, Laughlin came back against Chester in the fifth and final period of the City Industrial League contest at Newell park last evening and by bunching three hits scored three runs which evened the situation at a 5 to 5 verdict as darkness enveloped the field.

Briggle, who had done the hurling for Laughlin, opened the crucial interim with a single. Parsons followed with a safe drive to right. Both finished as Babb tripled. Then M. Cebula supplanted Stoffel. It was his job to save the game with the score 5 to 4 and none out.

It was all but dark as Chester's premier took up the burden. He fanned the three men that faced him which ordinarily would have given his club the victory but Potts missed the third strike on Finley. This necessitated an assist to Heckathorne which, momentarily delayed, gave Babb just time to dash under the first bagman's quick return, tying the score. Mike then faced the task of maintaining the tie and this he accomplished with his speed ball.

Honors were accordingly even in that Laughlin, by the great rally all but won while Chester, unable to maintain the early lead, refused to let their opponents pass. The tie will thus mean a possible replaying of the game.

Babb was the batting hero of the game with a single and triple in three chances, the final blow making possible the tie, he himself scoring the latter run. At first he also played snappy ball where he accepted eight chances.

Bubin, with a double and a single in two chances had a perfect swatting mark for the day.

W. Watson, fielding brilliantly, accepted six chances at second for Laughlin.

P. Cebula, with two singles in three attempts, led Chester with the bat.

Catcher Hunselman was struck by a ball in the hand during the contest and had a finger torn, but gamely returned to work after first aid was administered.

In attendance was one of the largest crowds that has this year assembled at league games anywhere. The diamond was entirely surrounded by automobiles several deep while the open spaces beyond left and back of the first base line were veritable parking places.

Chester scored one run and had three men left on the bases in the first. Evans opened with a walk off Briggle. F. Marshall, sacrificing was safe as Briggle, fielding the ball, threw late to Finley on second. P. Cebula beat out a bunt. Wilde lined to Briggle, who assisted to Hunselman, retiring Evans at the plate. L. McMath walked, forcing F. Marshall home. Potts fouled to Babb and Heckathorne flew to Finley.

Finley doubled beyond the parked cars in left in the first after Babb had fanned and Parsons had skied to P. Cebula. Herbert lined to P. Cebula, who assisted to Heckathorne on a bound, the ball getting by him, permitting Finley to score. W. Watson went out, Stoffel to Heckathorne.

Wyant and Stoffel singled consecutively to middle. Evans went out, W. Watson to Babb. F. Marshall singled to right, scoring Wyant and Stoffel, but was caught going to second, Bubin to Hunselman to Finley. P. Cebula singled to middle as did Wilde. On a double steal, the former finished and Wilde reached third on Hunselman's overthrow. L. McMath flew to Finley.

Bubin doubled to right in the second after Aufderheide had flown to F. Marshall. Hunselman singled to middle, scoring Bubin. Briggle knocked into a double play. P. Cebula to L. McMath to Heckathorne.

Wilde, hit by Briggle in the fifth, reached second as L. McMath went out, W. Watson to Babb. He stole third and counted as Potts was retired, W. Watson to Babb. Heckathorne walked.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Often you see golfers who begin their back swing with a pronounced twisting to the right of the entire body. That's all wrong. Such a player is beginning his swing with his body, whereas it should begin with control of the club in the hands. The hands move first, the body follows. There should be practically no consciousness of the body exertions until just before the ball is hit, when you do throw in the body. This results, however, more as the releasing of an accumulation of force, the body going with the clubhead against the ball. You cannot start a back swing with a body twist because you cannot swing a golf club with your body. You swing it with the hands and arms, just as you would crack a whip or throw a ball.

TURK-NASH WINS AT WELLSVILLE

urn Tables on Down-river Club in 10-1 Verdict.

TURK-NASH, defeated by Wellsville on Thursday, turned on the down river aggregation at Central park and won the City Industrial league contest between the two last evening, 10 to 1.

Deshler held the losing contingent to five hits and a single run in the seven innings of play. He fanned five and passed one. He also batted at a .667 clip with two safe blows in three attempts.

Patterson started to pitch for Wellsville but lasted but one and two-thirds innings when Meyer, who had won from the Motors the night before, went in. He, however was found for six runs.

Meyer did some hitting himself, though, collecting a single and a double in three chances and led his club with the stick.

E. Bailey, batting at a .400 clip and Earl Mundy at .750 with his three bingles in four tries, through which he scored three runs, vied with Deshler for swatting honors for Turk-Nash.

J. Watson had a perfect batting figure, walking twice, singling once, having a sacrifice and scoring three runs.

OPEN SERIES WITH VICTORY

Chester Reserves Trim Smith Ferry Nine, 11-6.

The Chester Reserves defeated Smiths Ferry last night at the Ferry in the first of a three-game series, 11 to 6.

Mason was wild and was derricked in the first while Hays and McCombs, his successors, were pounded for 10 hits. Zorzie held the Pennsylvanians to five scattered blows, three of them coming in the sixth with darkness enveloping the field.

The second game of the series will be played Wednesday evening at Chester. On Monday the Reserves will go to Pughtown to play the Boosters. They will lack the services, however, of C. Bennett who will be out of the game for a week or more as a result of a bad spike wound which he received last night in stealing home in the fourth inning.

Pulls Out Draw With Highly Rated Loayzo

"Smart Coin" Goes in on Chilean Fighter at Prevailing Odds and the Boys Thought They Were Really Set for Killing.

By Davis J Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—In a moment of inspiration and probably lacking something better to do, some one called him Ace Hudkins, and were they to thumb through the entire deck of fifty-two cards, they might have been more thorough and less appropriate. In the event that I have not made myself sufficiently clear, what I wish to infer is that I think the kid is clever.

Twice, now, he has had his chance to finish second according to the wishes of the so-called wise Broadway money and twice has he fooled both the money and the men who bet it.

A comparative few weeks ago, they sent him in with Ruby Goldstein, and they were so sure that everything was all right that some of them started to collect their bets in the lobby without going to the annoyance of witnessing the conventional and perfunctory destruction of the young man in question.

Last night they turned the fellow loose again and this time he got a draw with Stanislaus Loayza, supposedly the greatest lightweight who never held the title. He got a draw but if he didn't win that fight then the writer doesn't know his onions, and doesn't want to know them. Hudkins came home on the bit, a winner by ten lengths. But boys will pull one out of the hat every now and then and last night they were about due.

Still Passing the Hat.

I am duly aware of the fact that Hudkins was a 6 to 5 favorite but that was beyond the point. The "smart" money went in on Loayza at the prevailing odds and the boys really thought they were set for a killing. They knew this Hudkins bird had lined up the saps behind him with his knockout over Goldstein; so they sat back and took every dollar that evinced a desire to travel. The business went into reverse, and for the second time Hudkins went home with the knowledge that he owed Broadway a collection.

They still were passing the hat this morning.

But, as far as I am concerned, they won't have to do it for Hudkins. He is the uncrowned lightweight champion.

Loayza is a good boy but Hudkins is a better one and they will remain until death do them part. Hudkins is as tough as the opposite side of a hard boiled egg.

Sid Terris has been trying to take the play away from all comers, but for Sidney's sake. I would hate to see him go so far wrong as to place his perdice in juxtaposition with Hudkins' good right hand. The incident simply would lead to unpleasant circumstances the Chinese will listen to this Russian propaganda, which is said to be widespread and well financed, no one can predict.

While silk exports have increased and other exports from China to the United States have relatively held their own, numerous articles could be sold to us in greatly increased quantity if the Chinese were better organized to produce them and ship them. Antimony, for example is in large demand, but Chinese miners and exporters are not increasing their output. The same is true of wood oil. And if China will not buy, she can not continue indefinitely to sell.

Efforts of ambassadors and government commercial agents to stimulate trade through contacts with the central government of China are of no avail because that government has practically no authority. The local bosses are maintaining separate governments, and the North China Herald recently summed up the political situation of China in describing Sun Chuan-fang's procedure of consolidating five East Coast provinces into what amounts to a kingdom of his own. Said the Herald:

"There is absolutely no logical, moral, or constitutional reason why he should not construct a kingdom for himself, and if he governs wisely, every reason, from the standpoint of the people under him, why he should."

The same newspaper suggests that the foreign diplomats are wasting their breath carrying on tea parties with officials at Peking, and that if they want any action to improve conditions for the commercial interests of their nations, they may as well negotiate agreements with the separate war lords.

Sun Chuan-fang has expressed about the same idea, although he does not repudiate the central government, but merely does not honor it with any particular attention, pay it any taxes, or take any orders from it. The ambassadors from China to foreign lands theoretically represent the central government, but actually it is hrad to tell whether they represent any one.

A small amount of customs from some ports still gets into the central treasury and keeps a semblance of officialdom going at Peking with a similar small amount of taxes, but generally speaking China is running along on the centuries old customs and traditions and industrious habits of her people, with no national government at all. Probably no other country on earth could do this and survive.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE.

Louise was blowing her nose. "There p," she agreed gently. They moved hesitantly into the disorderly living-room: Bee's wardrobe trunk standing open, clothing thrown across the center table, books and framed photographs in a heap on the couch. "We try to make ourselves believe, here in the Village, that love is cerebral," Lou murmured without turning. "But apparently it isn't." She heard her own voice but didn't listen. Odd that she hadn't observed that mess when she first went into the room. Or had she? It was confusing. But the whole day had been that. What about their plans What about the world given to Des Plaines and the pretty firm opposition of Mr. Hargrove? She'd had a lot to tell Bee about that. For once in her life she'd felt the need of advice, or at least of talking out. She seemed lately to have been losing, day by day, her decision of character. Something, disheartening about that. But crying was no good. . . .Had Bee forgotten their exultant opportunity? It almost seemed so. And it couldn't be discussed now, not with this deeply changed Bee. She'd brush it aside.

So Delia, perhaps, was dying, in their little bedroom. This was a thought that plumbed the soul. . . . Death. Or a living tragedy. And Arthur!

There was a heavy step. The doctor came out.

Bee, speaking out of the hush that enveloped the two girls, asked quickly: "Is there any hope?"

The man stood a moment looking critically at the faded wallpaper. He compressed his lips.

Lou dug her nails into her palms, and stared at him. Why didn't he say something?

"Yes," it finally came. "Yes a little."

Then he went off down the stairs.

Bee was clearing off the couch. The books and pictures she stacked in a corner. "You'll have to sleep here,' 'she said. "I brought out some of your things. They're in the wicker chair."

Lou, perched on a corner of the center table, watched her.

"What do you figure you're going to do?" Both voices were hushed.

"Oh, I shan't get to bed tonight. You see, that, doctor wanted two nurses, but I've been helping this one, watching just what she did, and I could call her in a pinch."

Don't be silly, Bee. We'll get another nurse."

"Well—I've had to consider the cost a little. No telling what it will run to. And I feel equal to anything. Honest.

Louise lit a cigarette as an aid to thought.

"We'll have another nurse. What's the doctor's number?"

"I wrote it down. It's under the phone. Just move it, if you really—"

Louise promptly disposed of that matter. Then she remarked, still puzzling her way through a confusion of impulses and swift thoughts: "We've got to talk. Sit down. You make me nervous." Bee obeyed. "How about her folks?"

"She begged me not to tell them."

"Yes, but—"

"I know. We've got to."

"Of course. Have you got the address?"

"No." Bee considered the problem. "I wonder—maybe it's in one of my college books. The Annual, or something. They're in my trunk—in there." She indicated the bedroom. "Though come to think of it, her father's initials wouldn't be there, or the street address."

"I'd figure out some way to wire as soon as you can. Her people have rights, you know."

Bee nodded. "They'll come tearing down here tomorrow. It'll be rather awful—coming into this tragic mess."

"I don't imagine they have any spare money."

"No. Delia had to work, you know, up there. She partly worked her way through college, too. I'll tell you, Lou—of course, I've been thinking things over pretty fast today. You've got to help with this."

"Of course."

"You can send something back from California. Thank heaven you've got a real job. I'd have gone ahead, anyway. I had no choice. But I've banked on you."

"I don't know that I'll go to California. I've got a perfectly good job here."

"Of course you'll go!"

"The idea was to go together."

"Nonsense. Of course it would have been nice, but you can't throw down a chance like that. You've got to go on."

"The fun's gone out of it." Lou watched the smoke curling up from her cigarette. After a little she remarked, musingly—a casual sentence that was no more than a chip floating by on the flood of her thoughts: "This is Thursday night." She pulled herself together and glanced at the watch on her wrist. "Three-thirty. Hum! I thought it was about seven.

"I'm going up after Arthur about five, Lou. He ought to turn up at Joe's toward the end of the afternoon. I wonder if you'd mind sticking here."

"Of course I'll stay—though I'm still doubtful of that move."

"Well"—Bee got up—"it's what I get out of watching Delia and thinking about what she was able to say. There's just one thing that will put a little fight into her, or a little hope, at least; and that's marriage. It's all she can see."

"Oh!" mused Lou. Then: "He'll never do that."

"Perhaps he'll have to. One thing I've been thinking—I'd like some practical advice—oh, about the law, all that. But I can't think of anybody, unless it's—"

Lou interrupted quickly: "Fred Kendall?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Mr. Hargrove wolud be perfect, but after what I've gone through with him today, I don't know about asking this of him."

"I'll try Fred." Bee came over to the telephone, then turned to her friend with that intently sober look and remarked gently: I've been a crazy sort of child, I'm afraid. A thing like this shakes me so. Of course I'll talk with him. He IS practical, and he probably can help." She called his apartment.

"Funny," she said, a hand clapped over the receiver, "he's moved. They don't apear to know where."

"Try the airplane company."

"Of course." They had the address. "Hm! Over in West Fifty-sixth street. He HAS tumbled in the world." It took an hour to find his voice over the wires of the complicated city. During that time Lou busied herself rehanging the pictures and straightening out the room. The doctor appeared again, followed shortly by the second nurse. At five Bee hurried uptown to meet Fred.

The Rev. Hall knew Mrs. Mills too well. They were not cautious, and when they met under the crab apple tree somebody murdered them.

HOD different from the mental attitude of the murderer or murderess that killed the clergyman and Mrs. Mills, who sang in his choir. How do you explain psychically the fact that Mrs. Hall, who lost a husband, does not speak to Jimmy Mills, who lost his wife in the same calamity?

RECORDS FALL AS MISS EDERLE REACHES SHORE IN 141-2 HOURS

Plans Visit to Germany Before Return to States.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 7.—Gertrude Ederle, the American girl whose feat of swimming the English channel in faster time than any of her male predecessors is now history, awoke at 9 o'clock this morning after less than seven hours of sleep, radiant and refreshed and showing no signs of her fourteen hours and thirty-one minute swim from Cape Gris Nez to King's Down, near Deal.

Retires at 2:05 a. m.

Miss Ederle got to bed at 2:45 o'clock this morning after a gay supper party in the Grand hotel. There she had been toasted and hailed as the world's "supreme woman athlete of today and all time."

The loyal group which superintended the girl's training did not abandon their duties even though the channel crossing is now a thing of the past, but insisted on a thorough massage before they would permit her to retire. Her sleep was deep and apparently refreshing.

Except for a slight twinge in the left knee the New York girl showed no ill effects of the long swim. The absence of muscular ache was attributed to the massage she had received.

Miss Ederle was the cynosure for all eyes on the beach today and she attracted a great crowd as she came from the water after a ten minute swim.

"She is relaxing her muscles," "Pop" Ederle explained as those near him marveled at the girl's return so soon after her gruelling battle.

"You swim that channel twice more, Gertie, and we'll give it to you," an

DR. LEON FROST ENTERS NAVAL DENTAL SCHOOL

Returns to National Capital After Visit Here.

TOURED WORLD

Entered Navy During Early Part of 1917.

Dr. Leon Frost, a lieutenant-commander with the United States Navy, left today for Washington, D. C., where he will enter the Naval Dental school for a six months' course after a two weeks' visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frost, Smithfield street, and other relatives.

Commander Frost, who was reared in East Liverpool, has been in the naval service about 10 years. He enlisted during the early part of 1917 shortly after his graduation as a dentist from George Washington University in Washington, D. C. He has traveled around the world since joining Uncle Sam's forces.

Shortly after his enlistment, Dr. Frost was stationed on the U. S. S. Nevada and the New Jersey. He was sent to Europe during the latter part of 1917, remaining abroad for about three and one-half years. He was stationed in France during the World War, being on shore duty in Bordeaux, Brest and for a while in Paris, where he was attached to the American embassy.

Was Stationed in Dalmatia.

Following the armistice, he was sent to Spalato, capital of Dalmatia, one of the Balkan states on the Adriatic. While there, two former Austrian-Hungarian battleships were turned over to allied forces pending the decision of the peace conference. One of these ships, which were of the larger type, was placed in charge of the American navy. Dr. Frost and a force of 35 men kept guard on this vessel for seven months. The ship was later turned over to the Italian government who ordered that it be scrapped.

After a short stay in America, Dr. Frost was sent to Manila, where he remained one year. He than was ordered to the Orient where he was attached to the American embassy at Peking for about a year and a half. While in China he was with a force of 300 marines.

Two years ago he returned to the United States and since then has been at the Naval Air station at Coronado, near San Diego, California.

The appeal case of John H. Fultz, Wellsville's chief of police until his suspension by Mayor W. L. Fogo on March 19, last, will open on Monday, August 16, before Judge W. H. Spence in common pleas court at Lisbon.

Upon announcement of the date by Judge Spence, Clerk Frank Ballantine immediately notified Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, of counsel for the defense, and City Solicitor Samuel C. Luccock, of the assignment.

Fultz's case first was tried before the Wellsville civil service commission which upheld Mayor Fogo in his removal action.

The trial before the commission was spread out over a several weeks' period and a large number of witnesses were called by both sides, the case attracting consideration attention throughout the district.

Immediately after the commission's decision, in which each of the 12 charges made by Mayor Fogo was taken up separately, Fultz appealed to common pleas court.

Filed with his petition in appeal were 14 different papers concerning the case, beginning with the order of suspension issued by Mayor Fogo, these papers having been filed by Grattan V. Dugan, secretary of the Wellsville commission.

In the court fight the city will be represented by Solicitor Samuel Luccock and Attorney Charles Boyd.

Fultz will have as counsel W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and Frank E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool.

Drum had been working on the J. A. Williard farm since last spring and had gone this week to help out on the Earl Williard farm. He was formerly a resident of Williams county.

In addition to his wife he is survived by two sons, Willis and Orab.

SEVERE STORM HITS CLEVELAND

Streets Flooded by Cloudburst Along Lake Front.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7.—Central viaduct was closed to all traffic today, many cellars were water filled, numerous washouts were in evidence along the city's thoroughfares and streets were littered with broken limbs and leaves as the result of an unusually severe rain storm that swept the city last night. It was accompanied by vivid electrical display and high wind. The downpour was the heaviest in years, 1.66 inches of rain coming down in 30 minutes.

Central viaduct was closed because of a cave in due to wash out.

Hundreds of motorists were stalled all over the city. Street car service was tied up on Payne avenue, Central avenue, Scovill avenue, St. Clair avenue and East 105th street because of washouts, crippled wires or flooded tracks.

Three houses were struck by lightning bolts.

Police and firemen received many calls as drivers of cars got stuck in deep pools. In many instances the water reached above the fenders and poured into the inside of automobiles.

Youth Rescued After He Plunges From Lake Boat

ST. CLAIR, Mich., Aug. 7.—William A. Pritchard, 18, of Newark, Ohio, who says he jumped overboard from the steamer Leonard B. Pritchard was rescued by a passing launch. The youth says he is the son of Charles Pritchard of Newark. He explained his presence on the ship saying he had decided to spend his vacation in that manner.

Trainer Claims Girl Was Advised To Leave Water

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 7.—Gertrude Ederle alone deserves the credit for her record breaking trans-channel swim, for William Burgess, the veteran swimmer and trainer, admitted today that twice during the gruelling battle against the channel he advised Miss Ederle to give up the attempt.

Burgess said that at noon he felt that the American girl was failing and he advised her to leave the water, but she shook her head and swam on. Again at six o'clock in the evening, Burgess said he urged "Trudy" to leave the water, but again she shook her head.

HEALTHERS ACT ON COMPLAINTS

Halt Storing of Garbage and Rubbish in Potters Alley.

A garbage and rubbage nuisance, which is said to have existed in Potters alley next to the City Market house, St. Clair avenue, in recent weeks, was ordered abated by the board of health, yesterday.

According to the demands of the health board garbage from the Market house must be placed in covered cans to be emptied by the garbage collector at least once daily. Boxes, crates and other refuse matter is to be stored in the basement of the building and also removed daily. The use of the alley near the side door of the Market house for the dumping of rubbish and other refuse matter must be discontinued.

The board has also launched a campaign to halt the removal of garbage by persons other than the licensed garbage collector, P. Milliron. Many of the down town store keepers, it is claimed have been employing expressmen to remove garbage at reduced rates over that charged by Mr. Milliron, who has a contract with the health board for the collection of garbage. Merchants and expressmen who engage in this business will be prosecuted, board officials declare.

Vote for Fred George, Republican, for county treasurer. Primaries Aug. 10th.

117 CANDIDATES SEEK NOMINATIONS FOR STATE, DISTRICT AND COUNTY OFFICES AT REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES TUESDAY

One hundred and seventeen candidates—79 Republicans and 38 Democrats—are seeking party nominations for state, district and county offices at next Tuesday's primaries.

On the Republican ticket there is contest for every office with the exception of judge of the court of appeals, representative to congress, clerk of common pleas court, recorder, prosecuting attorney and coroner. In addition to the county offices, the Democrats have no contests for state senator, congress or judge of the court of appeals.

Twelve candidates are in the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Eleven are seeking the nomination for lieutenant governor.

For secretary of state there are three Republican entries, while eight seek the G. O. P. nomination for state treasurer. The attorney generalship has attracted four candidates, while Frank B. Willis is being opposed for a second term as United States senator by seven other candidates. Carrington T. Marshall has no opposition for chief justice of the supreme court. The two present members of the supreme court whose terms expire this year are out for re-election, being opposed by two others.

Chief interest in the county ticket is in the Republican race for the nomination for county treasurer in which Fred Eckfeld, Wellsville; Fred George, East Liverpool, and C. H. Hoopes, of Kensington, are the candidates. Another race which is attracting attention is that for commissioner in which S. N. Van Blaricom, Salem; T. H. Wilkinson, East Liverpool; John McB. Kerr, Yellow Creek township, and Howard Sinclair, Hanoverton, are the aspirants. Sheriff George Wright is being opposed for re-nomination by David Eells, Lisbon, while ex-Mayor Al Ferren, East Palestine, is opposing Elmer Walker for county auditor.

On the Democratic ticket, the race for governor is a four-cornered fight, with James C. B. Beatty, of this city, as one of the candidates. For lieutenant governor there are five candidates; for secretary of state, four; for state treasurer, two; for attorney general, four; for United States senator, three; for chief justice of the supreme court, two; for member of the supreme court, two; for member of the state central committee, three, and for state senator, one.

The Democrats have candidates in the field for state representative, sheriff, commissioner, auditor, treasurer, recorder, coroner, clerk of common pleas court or prosecuting attorney.

In addition to selecting party nominees electors will vote on a proposed amendment to the constitution which "authorizes assessment by municipalities of the cost of acquiring property for public improvement upon lands benefited thereby."

Here is a complete list of the candidates on both the Republican and Democratic tickets:

Plans Visit to Germany Before Return to States.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 7.—Gertrude Ederle, the American girl whose feat of swimming the English channel in faster time than any of her male predecessors is now history, awoke at 9 o'clock this morning after less than seven hours of sleep, radiant and refreshed and showing no signs of her fourteen hours and thirty-one minute swim from Cape Gris Nez to King's Down, near Deal.

Retires at 2:05 a. m.

Miss Ederle got to bed at 2:45 o'clock this morning after a gay supper party in the Grand hotel. There she had been toasted and hailed as the world's "supreme woman athlete of today and all time."

The loyal group which superintended the girl's training did not abandon their duties even though the channel crossing is now a thing of the past, but insisted on a thorough massage before they would permit her to retire. Her sleep was deep and apparently refreshing.

Except for a slight twinge in the left knee the New York girl showed no ill effects of the long swim. The absence of muscular ache was attributed to the massage she had received.

Miss Ederle was the cynosure for all eyes on the beach today and she attracted a great crowd as she came from the water after a ten minute swim.

"She is relaxing her muscles," "Pop" Ederle explained as those near him marveled at the girl's return so soon after her gruelling battle.

"You swim that channel twice more, Gertie, and we'll give it to you," an

Entered Navy During Early Part of 1917.

Dr. Leon Frost, a lieutenant-commander with the United States Navy, left today for Washington, D. C., where he will enter the Naval Dental school for a six months' course after a two weeks' visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frost, Smithfield street, and other relatives.

Commander Frost, who was reared in East Liverpool, has been in the naval service about 10 years. He enlisted during the early part of 1917 shortly after his graduation as a dentist from George Washington University in Washington, D. C. He has traveled around the world since joining Uncle Sam's forces.

Shortly after his enlistment, Dr. Frost was stationed on the U. S. S. Nevada and the New Jersey. He was sent to Europe during the latter part of 1917, remaining abroad for about three and one-half years. He was stationed in France during the World War, being on shore duty in Bordeaux, Brest and for a while in Paris, where he was attached to the American embassy.

While there, two former Austrian-Hungarian battleships were turned over to allied forces pending the decision of the peace conference. One of these ships, which were of the larger type, was placed in charge of the American navy. Dr. Frost and a force of 35 men kept guard on this vessel for seven months. The ship was later turned over to the Italian government who ordered that it be scrapped.

After a short stay in America, Dr. Frost was sent to Manila, where he remained one year. He than was ordered to the Orient where he was attached to the American embassy at Peking for about a year and a half. While in China he was with a force of 300 marines.

The appeal case of John H. Fultz, Wellsville's chief of police until his suspension by Mayor W. L. Fogo on March 19, last, will open on Monday, August 16, before Judge W. H. Spence in common pleas court at Lisbon.

Upon announcement of the date by Judge Spence, Clerk Ramsey Ballantine immediately notified Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, of counsel for the defense, and City Solicitor Samuel C. Luccock, of the assignment.

The trial before the commission was spread out over a several weeks' period and a large number of witnesses were called by both sides, the case attracting consideration attention throughout the district.

Immediately after the commission's decision, in which each of the 12 charges made by Mayor Fogo was taken up separately, Fultz appealed to common pleas court.

Filed with his petition in appeal were 14 different papers concerning the case, beginning with the order of suspension issued by Mayor Fogo, these papers having been filed by Grattan V. Dugan, secretary of the Wellsville commission.

In the court fight the city will be represented by Solicitor Samuel Luccock and Attorney Charles Boyd.

Fultz will have as counsel W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, and Ben L. Bennett and Frank E. Grosshans, of East Liverpool.

SEVERE STORM HITS CLEVELAND

Streets Flooded by Cloudburst Along Lake Front.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7.—Central viaduct was closed to all traffic today, many cellars were water filled, numerous washouts were in evidence along the city's thoroughfares and streets were littered with broken limbs and leaves as the result of an unusually severe rain storm that swept the city last night. It was accompanied by vivid electrical display and high wind. The downpour was the heaviest in years, 1.66 inches of rain coming down in 30 minutes.

Central viaduct was closed because of a cave in due to wash out.

Hundreds of motorists were stalled all over the city. Street car service was tied up on Payne avenue, Central avenue, Scovill avenue, St. Clair avenue and East 105th street because of washouts, crippled wires or flooded tracks.

Three houses were struck by lightning bolts.

Police and firemen received many calls as drivers of cars got stuck in deep pools. In many instances the water reached above the fenders and poured into the inside of automobiles.

HEALTHERS ACT ON COMPLAINTS

Halt Storing of Garbage and Rubbish in Potters Alley.

A garbage and rubbage nuisance, which is said to have existed in Potters alley next to the City Market house, St. Clair avenue, in recent weeks, was ordered abated by the board of health, yesterday.

According to the demands of the health board garbage from the Market house must be placed in covered cans to be emptied by the garbage collector at least once daily. Boxes, crates and other refuse matter is to be stored in the basement of the building and also removed daily. The use of the alley near the side door of the Market house for the dumping of rubbish and other refuse matter must be discontinued.

The board has also launched a campaign to halt the removal of garbage by persons other than the licensed garbage collector, P. Milliron. Many of the down town store keepers, it is claimed have been employing expressmen to remove garbage at reduced rates over that charged by Mr. Milliron, who has a contract with the health board for the collection of garbage. Merchants and expressmen who engage in this business will be prosecuted, board officials declare.

117 CANDIDATES SEEK NOMINATIONS FOR STATE, DISTRICT AND COUNTY OFFICES AT REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES TUESDAY

One hundred and seventeen candidates—79 Republicans and 38 Democrats—are seeking party nominations for state, district and county offices at next Tuesday's primaries.

On the Republican ticket there is contest for every office with the exception of judge of the court of appeals, representative to congress, clerk of common pleas court, recorder, prosecuting attorney and coroner. In addition to the county offices, the Democrats have no contests for state senator, congress or judge of the court of appeals.

Twelve candidates are in the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Eleven are seeking the nomination for lieutenant governor.

For secretary of state there are three Republican entries, while eight seek the G. O. P. nomination for state treasurer. The attorney generalship has attracted four candidates, while Frank B. Willis is being opposed for a second term as United States senator by seven other candidates. Carrington T. Marshall has no opposition for chief justice of the supreme court. The two present members of the supreme court whose terms expire this year are out for re-election, being opposed by two others.

Chief interest in the county ticket is in the Republican race for the nomination for county treasurer in which Fred Eckfeld, Wellsville; Fred George, East Liverpool, and C. H. Hoopes, of Kensington, are the candidates. Another race which is attracting attention is that for commissioner in which S. N. Van Blaricom, Salem; T. H. Wilkinson, East Liverpool; John McB. Kerr, Yellow Creek township, and Howard Sinclair, Hanoverton, are the aspirants. Sheriff George Wright is being opposed for re-nomination by David Eells, Lisbon, while ex-Mayor Al Ferren, East Palestine, is opposing Elmer Walker for county auditor.

On the Democratic ticket, the race for governor is a four-cornered fight, with James C. B. Beatty, of this city, as one of the candidates. For lieutenant governor there are five candidates; for secretary of state, four; for state treasurer, two; for attorney general, four; for United States senator, three; for chief justice of the supreme court, two; for member of the supreme court, two; for member of the state central committee, three, and for state senator, one.

The Democrats have candidates in the field for state representative, sheriff, commissioner, auditor, treasurer, recorder, coroner, clerk of common pleas court or prosecuting attorney.

In addition to selecting party nominees electors will vote on a proposed amendment to the constitution which "authorizes assessment by municipalities of the cost of acquiring property for public improvement upon lands benefited thereby."

380. If Christ had not been raised from the dead would even dead Christians be raised to life?

Answer: No; they would be "perished"—that is, utterly dead forever. See 1 Corinthians 15:17, 18.

381. Did God raise Jesus from the dead?

Answer: Yes. See Acts 4:10; 13:30, 34; Rom. 4:24.

382. Was Christ really dead?
Answer: See Revelation 1:18.

383. What is meant in Isaiah 53:12 when it says: "He hath poured out His soul unto Death?"

Answer: Jesus gave up His being as a man, and became actually dead until 'God raised Him from the dead" to a higher plane of life, even the divine plane. See Acts 4:10; Philippians 2:9-11.

384. Why did Jesus "pour out His soul (Being) unto death?"

Answer: Because He "made His soul (being) an offering for sin" — the sin of Adam — so that He might call from death. See Isa. 53:10; John 5:28, 29; Hos. 13:14.

385. Did Jesus call the death of Lazarus a sleep?

Answer: Yes. See John 11:11-14.

386. Did Jesus call Lazarus down from heaven?

Answer: No. Jesus called him "forth" from the tomb. See John 11:43, 44.

Decal Agent Makes Explanation of His Arrest.

Alfred Duhrssen, Orchard Grove avenue, who is president of the Decalcomnia Products company, yesterday addressed a statement to the Review-Tribune in explanation of a fine of $40.60 meted out by Municpal Judge J. C. Haney Thursday on two charges—careless and reckless driving and disorderly conduct by using abusive and insulting language to a police officer.

Duhrssen, according to police, became abusive in his language after he was arrested on Sixth street Wednesday afternoon by Patrolman Norman McFarland on a charge of driving his automobile over a fire hose in front of the St. Clair avenue fire station. The second allegation was preferred because of his alleged conduct when the warrant was read and, later, when he was taken to municipal court headquarters to arrange for bond. He spent more than an hour in jail before he was released in $300 bond, signed by Dale Thompson.

Duhrssen's signed statement follows:

"I am not the only resident of this city who has been subjected to rude and discourteous treatment by local police and a public protest against such treatment might find sufficient response to end eventually this unnecessary rudeness in enforcing the petty traffic regulations which overburden this city.

"I question if any ordinance exists which would forbid my driving over a fire hose when not in use and I believe that anyone would resent being discourteously hailed and arrested for such a reason. The indignation expressed by me contained more than a tinge of sarcasm, but not one profane or abusive word escaped me, however great the provocation. Neither did I say or imply that I had no use for policemen, firemen or anyone in uniform. Any statement to the contrary is a deliberate falsehood, but they were bound to get me and did.

"The usual advice under such circumstances is to pay your fine and shut up, whether or not there is any legal basis for imposing the fine. This attitude does not happen to appeal to me and therefore I am doubly penalized.

"I would be glad to subscribe to a fund for the inculcation of civility into cops and a sense of justice into judges, but I fear it would be hopeless.

"Yours truly,
"A. DUHRSSEN."

380. If Christ had not been raised from the dead would even dead Christians be raised to life?

Answer: No; they would be "perished"—that is, utterly dead forever. See 1 Corinthians 15:17, 18.

381. Did God raise Jesus from the dead?

Answer: Yes. See Acts 4:10; 13:30, 34; Rom. 4:24.

382. Was Christ really dead?
Answer: See Revelation 1:18.

383. What is meant in Isaiah 53:12 when it says "He hath poured out His soul unto Death?"

Answer: Jesus gave up His being as a man, and became actually dead until "God raised Him from the dead" to a higher plane of life, even the divine plane. See Acts 4:10; Philippians 2:9-11.

384. Why did Jesus "pour out His soul (Being) unto death?"

Answer: Because He "made His soul (being) an offering for sin" — the sin of Adam — so that He might call from death. See Isa. 53:10; John 5:28, 29; Hos. 13:14.

385. Did Jesus call the death of Lazarus a sleep?

Answer: Yes. See John 11:11-14.

386. Did Jesus call Lazarus down from heaven?

Answer: No. Jesus called him "forth" from the tomb. See John 11:43, 44.

"Old Trail," Once Impossibiilty, Rapidly Becoming Real Highway

"They Said is Couldn't be Done" But Men's Brains and Machinery are Conquering Famous "Narrows."

Man and machine are transforming what for years resembled little more than a trail into a wide and important thoroughfare and a visit to the "narrows" section of the Ohio river road between Port Homer and Yellow Creek reveals that what for years was said to be an impossibility is now about to become a reality,—a highway hewn through solid rocks at the highest point where the "old trail" traffic could not pass.

A practical demonstration on "the way to accomplish a thing is to do it" is seen daily as men and machinery blast and dig their way through the "narrows" where skeptics doubted and a backward citizenship declared "it couldn't be done" and let it go at that.

The treacherous piece of highway that held its terrors for travel to such an extent that it was rarely used is now being widened for permanent improvement that will be a part of the river highway from East Liverpool to Bellaire in this immediate vicinity but which opens up untold highway possibilities and advantages far and beyond.

"They said it couldn't be done" but man's brains and determination, motor trucks, giant shovels and dynamite are blasting, and cutting their way steadily but surely along the ledge that leads down a gradual slope towards Yellow Creek as the largest and most difficult piece of engineering in the entire Port-Homer-Yellow Creek section.

Progress Amazes Visitors.

Visitors to the "narrows" improvement yesterday were amazed at the progress made by the state highway department's men and machinery in opening up this piece of highway that has for years been a barrier to river road progress. It has been a physical obstacle the size of which has frightened road builders to such an extent that Jefferson county has been backward in opening up one of its greatest assets—the river road.

Today the "old trail," as some have termed it, is being transformed from a narrow, dangerous, almost unused road into a wide, substantial highway that will take its place in the river highway system that is the dream of those whose vision has brought about the gigantic river road improvement project.

A visit to the scene of operations along the narrow trail is convincing that somebody means business. A huge steam shovel is eating its way through a hill of rock at the extreme northern end of the "narrows" project. Earth and rock loosened from the hill is being thrown into low places in the general widening scheme and the ground work is being laid for a permanent, improved highway through a magnificent country heretofore unrevealed to the motorist.

Work was started in 1925 on the widening process. The state highway department began over a year ago to lay the ground work for improvement of the Port Homer-Yellow creek section. With the general river road improvement in view, the "narrows" section loomed as one of the largest obstacles. Backed by demands of a citizenship whose vision saw untold advantage for Jefferson county and the Ohio valley as well, and promises of county aid for the project, the state lost no time in beginning its operations at the "narrows" with the result that such excellent progress has been made that the river road enthusiasts now feel happy over the outlook for the improved road within the next year or two, at least with a hard surface of some type to permit through travel.

Make Tremendous Fills.

Beginning at a railroad crossing near Port Homer the engineering activity has been extended and varied. A tremendous fill has been made along the railroad tracks where a sharp turn has been eliminated and a narrow, winding road along and around a hill will be done entirely away with, cutting the distance at that point almost a quarter of a mile. Just beyond the fill along the railroad is a huge cut, the earth and rock being used for making fills. A large part of the highway south of the very narrowest point along the high ledge nearly to Yellow creek has been widened and partially graded, a task that has not proven difficult owing to the fact that it was largely through level, soft ground. Numerous large fills have been made along the river side of the road with rock hewn from the precipitous banks by the steam shovel.

Dynamite is being freely used in the splitting of rock at the narrowest and highest point about one mile south of Yellow Creek. The steam shovel proceeds slowly but surely as a small army of trucks steadily haul away rock and earth for fills at various points along the construction. Nearly a half-mile of rocky hillside must still be removed but there is every evidence that the work is going on steadily to remove every barrier in the way of an ultimate improved river highway.

Victory Not Far Off.

The Ohio river road will come into its own when the "narrows" section is opened, in the belief of those who have been most active toward the improvement. Persons of vision who for years have seen the advantages of a continuous Ohio river road look upon the mighty operations at the "narrows" with a smile of satisfaction. Victory seems assured as man and machinery rip their way through physical barriers which only a few years ago seemed impossible to penetrate.

What is being done at the "narrows" might have been done years ago and the present generations might have been deriving the benefit of the road through a magnificent country over which tourists in future years will marvel and which for years has impeded Ohio river progress in many more ways than one. Jefferson county will receive the direct benefit from the highway completion but the entire valley from Columbiana county to points far to the south will also be handsomely rewarded.

A visit to the "narrows" operations is a certain cure for those "highway blues" and leaves one with a happy anticipation that the Ohio river highway completion is "just around the corner." A mass movement, with every element of civic betterment working shoulder to shoulder, will accomplish it.

...nearly a thousand dollars Less

GOOD judgment suggests that you see all the new cars—before you buy any. Paige welcomes your strictest comparisons of the newest and finest Paige with any or every other car. For Paige believes that you simply cannot duplicate the performance, appearance or sheer downright dollar-for-dollar value of these latest Paige cars at anywhere near their amazingly low prices.

The newest Paige cars sell for nearly a thousand dollars less than last year's Paige models. And they do it because Paige is building and selling five times as many cars this year as last. Indeed, Paige sales throughout America registered a gain of 551% in the first six months of 1926.

But even the new low prices of these Paige cars will not delight you as much as the wonderful performance they display. They are speedy cars, powerful cars, economical cars. Acceleration is instantaneous, while the slightest pressure on their Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel brakes bring them to cushioned rest immediately. They are the easiest cars in the world to handle in traffic.

"Old Trail," Once Impossibiilty, Rapidly Becoming Real Highway

"They Said is Couldn't be Done" But Men's Brains and Machinery are Conquering Famous "Narrows."

Man and machine are transforming what for years resembled little more than a trail into a wide and important thoroughfare and a visit to the "narrows" section of the Ohio river road between Port Homer and Yellow Creek reveals that what for years was said to be an impossibility is now about to become a reality,—a highway hewn through solid rocks at the highest point where the "old trail" traffic could not pass.

A practical demonstration on "the way to accomplish a thing is to do it" is seen daily as men and machinery blast and dig their way through the "narrows" where skeptics doubted and a backward citizenship declared "it couldn't be done" and let it go at that.

The treacherous piece of highway that held its terrors for travel to such an extent that it was rarely used is now being widened for permanent improvement that will be a part of the river highway from East Liverpool to Bellaire in this immediate vicinity but which opens up untold highway possibilities and advantages far and beyond.

"They said it couldn't be done" but man's brains and determination, motor trucks, giant shovels and dynamite are blasting, and cutting their way steadily but surely along the ledge that leads down a gradual slope towards Yellow Creek as the largest and most difficult piece of engineering in the entire Port-Homer-Yellow Creek section.

Progress Amazes Visitors.

Visitors to the "narrows" improvement yesterday were amazed at the progress made by the state highway department's men and machinery in opening up this piece of highway that has for years been a barrier to river road progress. It has been a physical obstacle the size of which has frightened road builders to such an extent that Jefferson county has been backward in opening up one of its greatest assets—the river road.

Today the "old trail," as some have termed it, is being transformed from a narrow, dangerous, almost unused road into a wide, substantial highway that will take its place in the river highway system that is the dream of those whose vision has brought about the gigantic river road improvement project.

A visit to the scene of operations along the narrow trail is convincing that somebody means business. A huge steam shovel is eating its way through a hill of rock at the extreme northern end of the "narrows" project. Earth and rock loosened from the hill is being thrown into low places in the general widening scheme and the ground work is being laid for a permanent, improved highway through a magnificent country heretofore unrevealed to the motorist.

Work was started in 1925 on the widening process. The state highway department began over a year ago to lay the ground work for improvement of the Port Homer-Yellow creek section. With the general river road improvement in view, the "narrows" section loomed as one of the largest obstacles. Backed by demands of a citizenship whose vision saw untold advantage for Jefferson county and the Ohio valley as well, and promises of county aid for the project, the state lost no time in beginning its operations at the "narrows" with the result that such excellent progress has been made that the river road enthusiasts now feel happy over the outlook for the improved road within the next year or two, at least with a hard surface of some type to permit through travel.

Make Tremendous Fills.

Beginning at a railroad crossing near Port Homer the engineering activity has been extended and varied. A tremendous fill has been made along the railroad tracks where a sharp turn has been eliminated and a narrow, winding road along and around a hill will be done entirely away with, cutting the distance at that point almost a quarter of a mile. Just beyond the fill along the railroad is a huge cut, the earth and rock being used for making fills. A large part of the highway south of the very narrowest point along the high ledge nearly to Yellow creek has been widened and partially graded, a task that has not proven difficult owing to the fact that it was largely through level, soft ground. Numerous large fills have been made along the river side of the road with rock hewn from the precipitous banks by the steam shovel.

Dynamite is being freely used in the splitting of rock at the narrowest and highest point about one mile south of Yellow Creek. The steam shovel proceeds slowly but surely as a small army of trucks steadily haul away rock and earth for fills at various points along the construction. Nearly a half-mile of rocky hillside must still be removed but there is every evidence that the work is going on steadily to remove every barrier in the way of an ultimate improved river highway.

Victory Not Far Off.

The Ohio river road will come into its own when the "narrows" section is opened, in the belief of those who have been most active toward the improvement. Persons of vision who for years have seen the advantages of a continuous Ohio river road look upon the mighty operations at the "narrows" with a smile of satisfaction. Victory seems assured as man and machinery rip their way through physical barriers which only a few years ago seemed impossible to penetrate.

What is being done at the "narrows" might have been done years ago and the present generations might have been deriving the benefit of the road through a magnificent country over which tourists in future years will marvel and which for years has impeded Ohio river progress in many more ways than one. Jefferson county will receive the direct benefit from the highway completion but the entire valley from Columbiana county to points far to the south will also be handsomely rewarded.

A visit to the "narrows" operations is a certain cure for those "highway blues" and leaves one with a happy anticipation that the Ohio river highway completion is "just around the corner." A mass movement, with every element of civic betterment working shoulder to shoulder, will accomplish it.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1926.

Poor Judgment, Councilmen

East Liverpool's municipal council members evidently are unmindful of the appalling annual toll of human life, not to mention injuries, exacted by fireworks, for, by a vote of 6 to 1, they have removed all restrictions on the use of pyrotechnics within the limits of the corporation.

Failing to heed the lessons taught by frightful accidents which prompted prohibitory legislation in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Akron and scores of other cities, the solons have declared July 4, 1927—and probably a week or two before Independence Day—an open season for killings, maimings and fires by reason of their action in overriding Mayor Benedum's veto of the repealer.

In stead of strengthening the fireworks ban by an amendment to prohibit the sale of explosives as well as their discharge within the city limits, six of the seven councilmen followed the easiest course—appeal to the silly sentiment that "it does not seem like the Fourth without fireworks."

However, if the legislative dads had given a little more study to statistics on fatalities in the United States—and East Liverpool has figured in the reports—it is a safe wager they would not have voted as they did Thursday night.

Is too much to expect a change of mind on the part of councilmen during the next 11 months?

Courtesy to Americans

England, unlike France, is not making hostile demonstrations against American tourists, but is trying to attract and hold them. The government is co-operating in this effort with the hotel and transportation interests.

Some of the methods adopted suggest a sort of enterprise which we usually think of as American rather than British. Mayors throughout Great Britain have been asked to prepare publicity matter setting forth the attractions of their cities and surroundings.

Britain wants to get more of the tourist money that is now spent in France. From present indications, she is likely to succeed. When the French make things unpleasant for Americans, Americans naturally stop going there; and if there is any other country that interests the average American as much as France, it is England.

The British have their grievances, real or imaginary, against America, as the French have. But they are less disposed to show them in public, or get excited about them. The British are better able than the French to discuss a difference of opinion dispassionately and impersonally. There may be debate among statesmen, and journalists, and unpleasant flings in some of the British newspapers, but there is no mobbing on the street and little or no evidence of personal dislike shown to tourists going decently about their own affairs.

It will doubtless be found by our European friends that courtesy is a business asset to a nation no less than to a private enterprise.

Needless Detours

"If a trunk line railroad can assemble a steel trestle and slip it into place between trains without interfering with traffic," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "it ought to be possible for the highway department to manage an ordinary road job without sending motorists miles out of their way on detours. It depends primarily on how much the responsible authority cares."

Motorists who have suffered from long and difficult detours will endorse that statement most heartily. An occasional detour is necessary, but it should be made passable before the main road is shut off. That should be part of the contract. Detours should be as short and as good as possible. To go eight or 10 miles out of the way on rough roads to give the road makers the use of a few hundred feet of exclusive roadway at a time seems hardly necessary. To the tourist in Ontario, every road seems at all times to be under repair. But the sign "Drive Slow, Men at Work," a thousand feet ahead of the machinery, coupled with a little courtesy on the part of motorists, one of whom must wait for the other on the narrow by-pass, seems to be all that is needed in most cases.

Midsummer in Wall Street

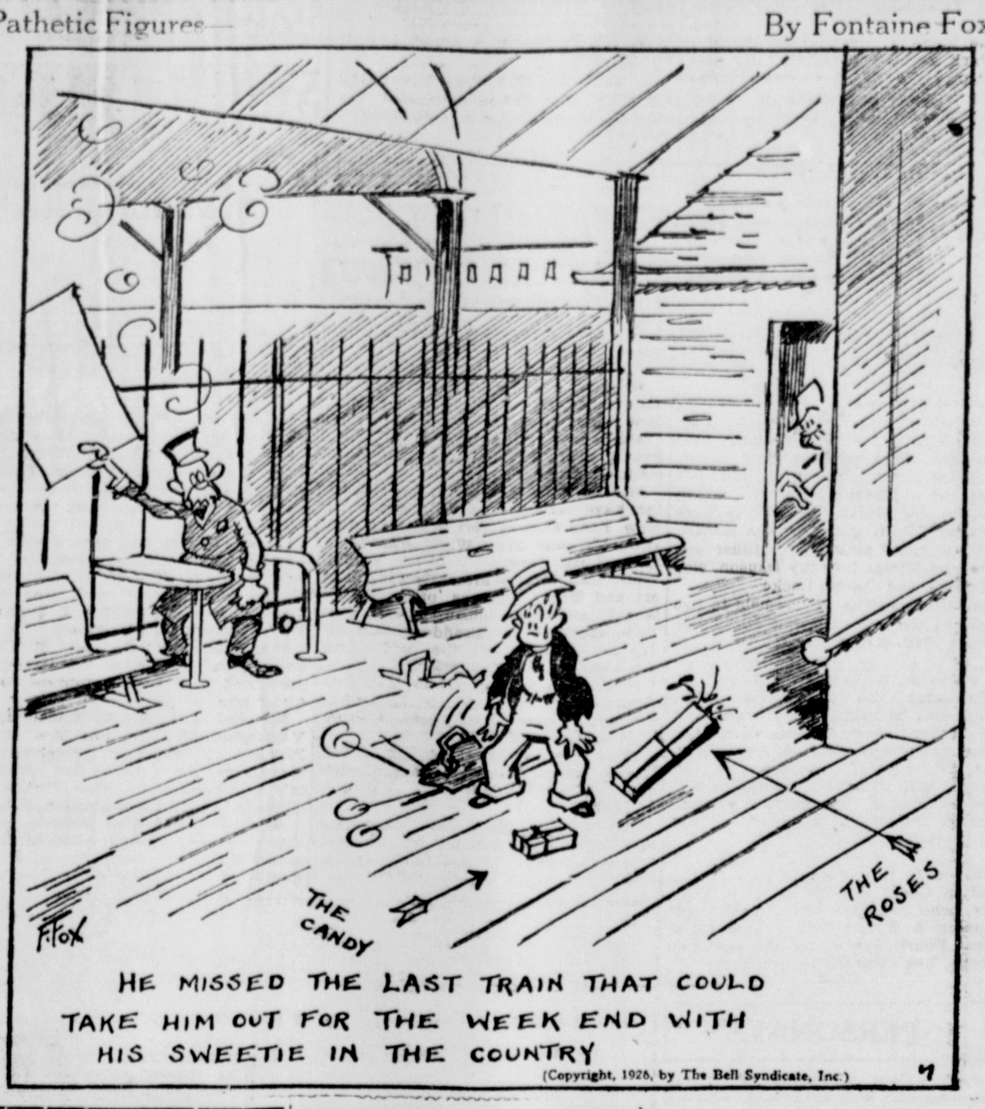
Sales on the stock exchange lately have been breaking all records for midsummer. And they are not, as might be expected at this time of year, "bear" sales. It is a "bull" movement. Stocks in general have risen. Certain stocks, particularly automobile, steel and railroad stocks, have had a phenomenal rise.

This is a natural and obvious reflection of prosperity, which is all the more impressive when it comes as a substitute for the usual seasonal dullness and pessimism.

There is an element of gambling in it; but the strong, steady rise in such securities shows a strengthening faith in the American economic situation and a belief that business in general is not only sound and profitable now but is entering upon an era of greater scope and profit.

"Women Too Beautiful, Expert Now Advises 'Hard Boiled' Look" reads the headline. And maybe a lot of women will go and pay good money to beauty parlors to acquire the look that blase flappers soom to be born with.

Pathetic Figures— By Fontaine Fox



NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—It has been more than 30 years since Ward McAllister passed to his reward and in all those intervening years there has arisen no social Machiavelli to tweak the upper crust's proboscis and censor its guest list.

Social leadership expired with McAllister. A few have grasped the reins and galloped away, only to come cropper at the first hurdle. Society no longer wants a leader. Those who have tried it soon learn the pack will not follow.

Ward McAllister was a curious mixture for the part he played. He was not a fastidious dresser. In fact he appeared rather shabby in his neglected frock coat. He was plump, with mild blue eyes and an imperial graced his chin. He was once mistaken for one of those itinerant magicians.

He was not by any means wealthy. He came from an impoverished Savannah, Ga., family, who traced origin back to the Huguenots. He had studied law, but showed no great gifts as a disciple of Blackstone. Indeed when he lost leadership synical society sniffed: "We have merely discharged our cook."

While he did show an aptitude for fashioning culinary wonders, McAllister was more than a cook. He had high ideals and fine manners. He was a gentleman of what we are now pleased to call "the old school." The slightest show of vulgarity in manners, dress or food left him cold.

He had odd notions about this and that. He thought shaking hands bad form. A dinner without ladies was no dinner at all. A gentleman did not imbibe more than one cocktail before dinner. Stout men were ridiculous in white weskits.

He drew up the famous list of four hundred for Mrs. Astor's ball, which gave society this appellative enduring to this day. He died disappointed and discredited by those he had led. Money had begun to invoke its social power and Victorianism had become a jest. Social aspirants were changing their names and crashing the gate.

There are still those in Doyers street in Chinatown who believe in the legend of that short, winding thoroughfare running off the hip of Chatham Square. In the basement of a rickety old house at No. 3, built by Antony Doyer, from whence the street acquired its name, is supposed to be buried $35,000,000 in gold. Scores have dug for it at odd times. Claimants have appeared from all over the world. Doyers, like Mott and Pell streets, no longer bubbles with life. It is usually forlorn and deserted. Most of New York's 20,000 Chinese make Newark their home and playground. Those who know say that the only semblance of the old Chinatown remaining is maintained by syndicates operating sightseeing busses. Doyers street at one period was considered the wickedest street in town by police. It had more gambling houses, brothels, opium dens and sawdust joints to the square foot than any other area in the metropolis.

It seems that about the only thing Chinatown is used for these days is as the place to mention that Irving Berlin got his start.

No doubt Berlin is a little weary of hearing of his early days in the saloon back room. I have met at least a hundred men who claim to have pitched him nickles.

Next to Berlin, more legends were built up about Bert Williams, the Negro actor, and his shyness than almost anyone on Broadway. I remember one that he never appeared on Broadway save to go to the theatre. Several days later I saw him in a big red dragon of a car that dazzled even blase Times Square. He wore a canary yellow camel's hair and was splitting the street wide open.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Trade With China.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—Years of revolutions and civil wars which have brought political chaos to China have not destroyed the industry or productivity of the people of China, but have seriously interrupted their ability to buy and distribute imported goods, according to reports of the United States Department of Commerce, which keeps a close account of the trade of the United States in the Far East, and also keeps track of the general trade of Asiatic countries. This explains the fact that while American exports to China fell off seriously in 1925 and are not so good this year, our imports from China held their own in most lines and greatly increased as to raw silk.

Frank R. Eldridge chief of the Far Eastern Division of the Department of Commerce and a close student of Chinese affairs, is convinced that perhaps no country except China could keep going under the chaotic conditions of government prevailing there. The stoicism of the Chinese race, and its long experience with poor government, has enabled it to carry on, after a fashion, with really no national government at all.

Hence while American trade with China is not prospering as it should, British trade with China is being ruined and only Japan is making real headway with trade there, the Chinese people go on producing and exporting their product and doing without imports which can not get by the various political barriers.

The latest shift in lines of power among the war lords who have cut China up into practically separate kingdoms will not greatly alter trade conditions, and may even better them, in the belief of the Commerce Department observers. By this new shift a group of five Pacific Coast provinces, centering on Shanghai, have been confederated under the power of Sun Chuan-fang, who previously controlled only Kiangsu, the province in which Shanghai is located. Sun thus becomes fifth in number but among the first in power among the war lords.

Understands Foreign Trade.

His coup d'etat centers on the city which has been the great trade center of China, especially since Canton has lost her foreign trade through repeated revolutions, and Sun has been ruling in Shanghai with a wise understanding that foreign trade is the life of his city. By adding the other coast provinces south of Shantung and north to Canton to his zone of control he may actually increase the facilities of foreign trade. The ports of Ningpo and Foochow are added to his domain.

If he continues to respect the treaties of the old central government the traders from this country may gain ground by his increased power. Fully ninety per cent of recent American trade with China has been with Shanghai and with the Manchurian zone to the north, which is reached through the Japanese controlled port., Dairen and over Japanese controlled railways. Japan has a strong hand in the reign of Chang Tso-Lin, war lord of Manchuria.

We have very little trade at present with Canton, which after every sort of government from monarchy to bolshevism has fallen under control of Chiang Kai-shek. Much of the decrease from 108 to 93 millions in our exports to China last year is represented by the rapid decline of Canton as a distributing center. The other two zones into which China is now cut, Yunnan in the south and the scattered area of the center controlled by Wu Pei-fu, have never been sources of direct buying in quantity from the United States.

These great inland areas are now almost cut off from imports by the likin charges set up by various war lords and municipalities. Likin is a local tariff assessed on all goods in transit, and collected off everything from a trainload to a wheelbarrow by local authorities. There are now more than 1,000 likin stations in China, and last year they collected $60,000,000 which is of record, regardless of graft. Worse than that, they prevented more trade than they collected from.

This interruption of trade accounts in great part for the fact that American flour, for example, was shipped to China to the extent of only 220,000 barrels in 1925, whereas, 1,246,000 barrels were sold there in 1924. Kerosene and cigarettes, two of our chief exports to China, declined in large measure, and so it was with other articles of wide use by the common people. Our copper exports to China almost disappeared, lumber and agricultural machinery fell off, and only cotton among our major exports showed a gain. If the new czar of the East Coast of China chacses the likin stations a bit farther inland, trade may pick up over that much area.

While American trade with China has declined as to exports and the American salesman is having hard sledding, the British are in a much worse predicament. Bolshevist propaganda has created what amounts to a boycott against British goods, Hong Kong is in the doldrums, and the British with investments of about half a billion dollars in China are doing little more business than the Americans, whose commercical interests there involve probably one-tenth that investment.

Japan Benefits Chiefly.

Japan is said to be the chief beneficiary from the British boycott. To some extent this boycott extends to all imported goods and is part of the bolshevist theory of anti-capitalism. Unhappily for China her people do not produce substitutes for the goods they refuse to buy from foreign sources. They merely go without. How long

WHY DRAG IT OUT?

The president of one of our largest railroads has always enjoyed life and the living of it. He has ever favored good things to eat and plenty of them, good things to drink and more of the same, long black, strong cigars to smoke and a box full handy.

Until he reached middle age and had progressed a trifle beyond it, his customary modes seemed to agree with him. But about a year ago his health rather failed him. At least, he developed nerves and curious sensations.

In the midwestern city where he lives he had the best available medical advice. But treatment, as locally applied, did not seem to help him any. The annoying and alarming symptoms persisted.

So in the fall he packed up and went to New York. Arriving there he summoned three of the leading diagnosticians in stomach troubles. These high priced scientists came to him, equipped with small black bags. They examined the sufferer thoroughly. They asked him countless questions—all about his diet, his habits, his family history, his emotions, sensations, feelngs, lkes and dslikes. Then they withdrew for a consultation.

After the lapse fo an hour they reentered his presence. The oldest specialist acted as spokesman.

"Mr. Blank," he said, "my confreres and I have considered your case from every standpoint. I now give you our delibate judgment. You must cut out those thick steaks and rishrdlnunununununkshrdlnu been eating; you must cut out black coffee and heavy cigars; above all things, you must cut out all alcoholic stimulant. You must alter your plan of life altogether—live hereafter on the strictest and simplest of diets, refrain from smoking, avoid all exertion and all excitement, go to bed every night at 9 o'clock and get up every morning at 6."

"And if I should do all these things which you gentlemen recommend—what then?" asked the railroader.

"In that event you should live at least five years."

Mr. Blank took a deep breath.

"What for?" he asked.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1926.

Poor Judgment, Councilmen

East Liverpool's municipal council members evidently are unmindful of the appalling annual toll of human life, not to mention injuries, exacted by fireworks, for, by a vote of 6 to 1, they have removed all restrictions on the use of pyrotechnics within the limits of the corporation.

Failing to heed the lessons taught by frightful accidents which prompted prohibitory legislation in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Akron and scores of other cities, the solons have declared July 4, 1927—and probably a week or two before Independence Day—an open season for killings, maimings and fires by reason of their action in overriding Mayor Benedum's veto of the repealer.

In stead of strengthening the fireworks ban by an amendment to prohibit the sale of explosives as well as their discharge within the city limits, six of the seven councilmen followed the easiest course—appeal to the silly sentiment that "it does not seem like the Fourth without fireworks."

However, if the legislative dads had given a little more study to statistics on fatalities in the United States—and East Liverpool has figured in the reports—it is a safe wager they would not have voted as they did Thursday night.

Is too much to expect a change of mind on the part of councilmen during the next 11 months?

Courtesy to Americans

England, unlike France, is not making hostile demonstrations against American tourists, but is trying to attract and hold them. The government is co-operating in this effort with the hotel and transportation interests.

Some of the methods adopted suggest a sort of enterprise which we usually think of as American rather than British. Mayors throughout Great Britain have been asked to prepare publicity matter setting forth the attractions of their cities and surroundings.

Britain wants to get more of the tourist money that is now spent in France. From present indications, she is likely to succeed. When the French make things unpleasant for Americans, Americans naturally stop going there; and if there is any other country that interests the average American as much as France, it is England.

The British have their grievances, real or imaginary, against America, as the French have. But they are less disposed to show them in public, or get excited about them. The British are better able than the French to discuss a difference of opinion dispassionately and impersonally. There may be debate among statesmen, and journalists, and unpleasant flings in some of the British newspapers, but there is no mobbing on the street and little or no evidence of personal dislike shown to tourists going decently about their own affairs.

It will doubtless be found by our European friends that courtesy is a business asset to a nation no less than to a private enterprise.

Needless Detours

"If a trunk line railroad can assemble a steel trestle and slip it into place between trains without interfering with traffic," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "it ought to be possible for the highway department to manage an ordinary road job without sending motorists miles out of their way on detours. It depends primarily on how much the responsible authority cares."

Motorists who have suffered from long and difficult detours will endorse that statement most heartily. An occasional detour is necessary, but it should be made passable before the main road is shut off. That should be part of the contract. Detours should be as short and as good as possible. To go eight or 10 miles out of the way on rough roads to give the road makers the use of a few hundred feet of exclusive roadway at a time seems hardly necessary. To the tourist in Ontario, every road seems at all times to be under repair. But the sign "Drive Slow, Men at Work," a thousand feet ahead of the machinery, coupled with a little courtesy on the part of motorists, one of whom must wait for the other on the narrow by-pass, seems to be all that is needed in most cases.

Midsummer in Wall Street

Sales on the stock exchange lately have been breaking all records for midsummer. And they are not, as might be expected at this time of year, "bear" sales. It is a "bull" movement. Stocks in general have risen. Certain stocks, particularly automobile, steel and railroad stocks, have had a phenomenal rise.

This is a natural and obvious reflection of prosperity, which is all the more impressive when it comes as a substitute for the usual seasonal dullness and pessimism.

There is an element of gambling in it; but the strong, steady rise in such securities shows a strengthening faith in the American economic situation and a belief that business in general is not only sound and profitable now but is entering upon an era of greater scope and profit.

"Women Too Beautiful, Expert Now Advises 'Hard Boiled' Look" reads the headline. And maybe a lot of women will go and pay good money to beauty parlors to acquire the look that blase flappers soom to be born with.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—It has been more than 30 years since Ward McAllister passed to his reward and in all those intervening years there has arisen no social Machiavelli to tweak the upper crust's proboscis and censor its guest list.

Social leadership expired with McAllister. A few have grasped the reins and galloped away, only to come cropper at the first hurdle. Society no longer wants a leader. Those who have tried it soon learn the pack will not follow.

Ward McAllister was a curious mixture for the part he played. He was not a fastidious dresser. In fact he appeared rather shabby in his neglected frock coat. He was plump, with mild blue eyes and an imperial graced his chin. He was once mistaken for one of those itinerant magicians.

He was not by any means wealthy. He came from an impoverished Savannah, Ga., family, who traced origin back to the Huguenots. He had studied law, but showed no great gifts as a disciple of Blackstone. Indeed when he lost leadership synical society sniffed: "We have merely discharged our cook."

While he did show an aptitude for fashioning culinary wonders, McAllister was more than a cook. He had high ideals and fine manners. He was a gentleman of what we are now pleased to call "the old school." The slightest show of vulgarity in manners, dress or food left him cold.

He had odd notions about this and that. He thought shaking hands bad form. A dinner without ladies was no dinner at all. A gentleman did not imbibe more than one cocktail before dinner. Stout men were ridiculous in white weskits.

He drew up the famous list of four hundred for Mrs. Astor's ball, which gave society this appellative enduring to this day. He died disappointed and discredited by those he had led. Money had begun to invoke its social power and Victorianism had become a jest. Social aspirants were changing their names and crashing the gate.

There are still those in Doyers street in Chinatown who believe in the legend of that short, winding thoroughfare running off the hip of Chatham Square. In the basement of a rickety old house at No. 3, built by Antony Doyer, from whence the street acquired its name, is supposed to be buried $35,000,000 in gold. Scores have dug for it at odd times. Claimants have appeared from all over the world. Doyers, like Mott and Pell streets, no longer bubbles with life. It is usually forlorn and deserted. Most of New York's 20,000 Chinese make Newark their home and playground. Those who know say that the only semblance of the old Chinatown remaining is maintained by syndicates operating sightseeing busses. Doyers street at one period was considered the wickedest street in town by police. It had more gambling houses, brothels, opium dens and sawdust joints to the square foot than any other area in the metropolis.

It seems that about the only thing Chinatown is used for these days is as the place to mention that Irving Berlin got his start.

No doubt Berlin is a little weary of hearing of his early days in the saloon back room. I have met at least a hundred men who claim to have pitched him nickles.

Next to Berlin, more legends were built up about Bert Williams, the Negro actor, and his shyness than almost anyone on Broadway. I remember one that he never appeared on Broadway save to go to the theatre. Several days later I saw him in a big red dragon of a car that dazzled even blase Times Square. He wore a canary yellow camel's hair and was splitting the street wide open.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Trade With China.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.—Years of revolutions and civil wars which have brought political chaos to China have not destroyed the industry or productivity of the people of China, but have seriously interrupted their ability to buy and distribute imported goods, according to reports of the United States Department of Commerce, which keeps a close account of the trade of the United States in the Far East, and also keeps track of the general trade of Asiatic countries. This explains the fact that while American exports to China fell off seriously in 1925 and are not so good this year, our imports from China held their own in most lines and greatly increased as to raw silk.

Frank R. Eldridge chief of the Far Eastern Division of the Department of Commerce and a close student of Chinese affairs, is convinced that perhaps no country except China could keep going under the chaotic conditions of government prevailing there. The stoicism of the Chinese race, and its long experience with poor government, has enabled it to carry on, after a fashion, with really no national government at all.

Hence while American trade with China is not prospering as it should, British trade with China is being ruined and only Japan is making real headway with trade there, the Chinese people go on producing and exporting their product and doing without imports which can not get by the various political barriers

The latest shift in lines of power among the war lords who have cut China up into practically separate kingdoms will not greatly alter trade conditions, and may even better them, in the belief of the Commerce Department observers. By this new shift a group of five Pacific Coast provinces, centering on Shanghai, have been confederated under the power of Sun Chuan-fang, who previously controlled only Kiangsu, the province in which Shanghai is located. Sun thus becomes fifth in number but among the first in power among the war lords.

Understands Foreign Trade.

His coup d'etat centers on the city which has been the great trade center of China, especially since Canton has lost her foreign trade through repeated revolutions, and Sun has been ruling in Shanghai with a wise understanding that foreign trade is the life of his city. By adding the other coast provinces south of Shantung and north to Canton to his zone of control he may actually increase the facilities of foreign trade. The ports of Ningpo and Foochow are added to his domain.

If he continues to respect the treaties of the old central government the traders from this country may gain ground by his increased power. Fully ninety per cent of recent American trade with China has been with Shanghai and with the Manchurian zone to the north, which is reached through the Japanese controlled port., Dairen and over Japanese controlled railways. Japan has a strong hand in the reign of Chang Tso-Lin, war lord of Manchuria.

We have very little trade at present with Canton, which after every sort of government from monarchy to bolshevism has fallen under control of Chiang Kai-shek. Much of the decrease from 108 to 93 millions in our exports to China last year is represented by the rapid decline of Canton as a distributing center. The other two zones into which China is now cut, Yunnan in the south and the scattered area of the center controlled by Wu Pei-fu, have never been sources of direct buying in quantity from the United States.

These great inland areas are now almost cut off from imports by the likin charges set up by various war lords and municipalities. Likin is a local tariff assessed on all goods in transit, and collected off everything from a trainload to a wheelbarrow by local authorities. There are now more than 1,000 likin stations in China, and last year they collected $60,000,000 which is of record, regardless of graft. Worse than that, they prevented more trade than they collected from.

This interruption of trade accounts in great part for the fact that American flour, for example, was shipped to China to the extent of only 220,000 barrels in 1925, whereas, 1,246,000 barrels were sold there in 1924. Kerosene and cigarettes, two of our chief exports to China, declined in large measure, and so it was with other articles of wide use by the common people. Our copper exports to China almost disappeared, lumber and agricultural machcinery fell off, and only cotton among our major exports showed a gain. If the new czar of the East Coast of China chacses the likin stations a bit farther inland, trade may pick up over that much area.

While American trade with China has declined as to exports and the American salesman is having hard sledding, the British are in a much worse predicament. Bolshevist propaganda has created what amounts to a boycott against British goods, Hong Kong is in the doldrums, and the British with investments of about half a billion dollars in China are doing little more business than the Americans, whose commercical interests there involve probably one-tenth that investment.

Japan Benefits Chiefly.

Japan is said to be the chief beneficiary from the British boycott. To some extent this boycott extends to all imported goods and is part of the bolshevist theory of anti-capitalism. Unhappily for China her people do not produce substitutes for the goods they refuse to buy from foreign sources. They merely go without. How long

WHY DRAG IT OUT?

The president of one of our largest railroads has always enjoyed life and the living of it. He has ever favored good things to eat and plenty of them, good things to drink and more of the same, long black, strong cigars to smoke and a box full handy.

Until he reached middle age and had progressed a trifle beyond it, his customary modes seemed to agree with him. But about a year ago his health rather failed him. At least, he developed nerves and curious sensations.

In the midwestern city where he lives he had the best available medical advice. But treatment, as locally applied, did not seem to help him any. The annoying and alarming symptoms persisted.

So in the fall he packed up and went to New York. Arriving there he summoned three of the leading diagnosticians in stomach troubles. These high priced scientists came to him, equipped with small black bags. They examined the sufferer thoroughly. They asked him countless questions—all about his diet, his habits, his family history, his emotions, sensations, feelngs, lkes and dslikes. Then they withdrew for a consultation.

After the lapse fo an hour they reentered his presence. The oldest specialist acted as spokesman.

"Mr. Blank," he said, "my confreres and I have considered your case from every standpoint. I now give you our delibate judgment. You must cut out those thick steaks and rishrdlnurunununukschrdlnu been eating; you must cut out black coffee and heavy cigars; above all things, you must cut out all alcoholic stimulant. You must alter your plan of life altogether—live hereafter on the strictest and simplest of diets, refrain from smoking, avoid all exertion and all excitement, go to bed every night at 9 o'clock and get up every morning at 6."

"And if I should do all these things which you gentlemen recommend—what then?" asked the railroader.

"In that event you should live at least five years."

Mr. Blank took a deep breath.

"What for?" he asked.

URGES PRIMARY SYSTEM CHANGE

Democratic Newspaper at Newark Approves Proposal.

The following comment on the proposal to abolish the present primary system in Ohio is of particular significance inasmuch as it represents the view of a Democratic newspaper, the Newark (O.) Advocate:

"During the past few days hundreds of Newark people have signed petitions asking for a referendum in November amending the primary election law. The sponsors for this action declare that it is a movement to get better men in public office. The proposal keeps all the safeguards of the present law, but insures party responsibility and provides for the selection of candidates of by convention.

"A clear explanation of the proposition is made by Charles L. Knight, publisher of The Akron Beacon-Journal, who tells the purposes of the proposal in this language:

"The amendment is so simple that it speaks for itself. The present constitutional provision compels all nominations to be made by primary elections. The proposed amendment would give to the legislature the power to say how such nominations are authorized by convention, the delegate must be elected by a direct vote of the people. This safeguards to the people every right and protection that now exists under the primary, makes it impossible to return to the old caucus system and yet makes possible state conventions at which duly elected delegates can make nominations for state offices.

"Under this amendment the state legislature can retain the direct primary for the nomination of congressmen and county officials shall be nominated by a convention whose delegates have been selected by the people to a primary.

"To state the thing in another way, it is proposed to give back to the legislature the power to make such rules and regulations as it may see fit in providing for the nomination of state, district and county officials, but it can provide no method without giving to the people a chance in a primary to select their own delegates to any convention which may be held.

"Back of the movement there are no motives except the desire to reestablish responsible party government and correct the dangerous condition that the direct primary has brought upon us. Under this system the man of moderate means can no longer seek a state office unless he is willing to have some person or interest finance his campaign.

"The expenditure of vast sums of money at each primary has become a necessity. One may object to this bad principle and yet if he hopes to make any progress, he must conform to it. Incidentally such a system will lead to the gross abuses that have recently occurred in other states.

"Any system of selecting candidates for office which puts a premium, on wealth, drives the poor man out of politics or compels him to seek financial assistance from those who seldom give it unless through the expectation of being amply repaid at the people's expense, is dangerous and highly subverse of honest representative government.

"No laws can regulate any such situation. Corrrupt practice acts we have in abundance and yet, as every one knows they are violated with impunity at every election."

Still, even those who rise above the common level can remain on the level. —Defiance Crescent-News.

Another Little Message

about that cup of sugar

RECENTLY we suggested that the essentials of the true spirit of neighborliness were exemplified in the borrowing of a cup of sugar.

Over the back-yard fence is a short cut indeed, to neighborliness. Miles so often are the fences that divide the common ground of mutual understanding and good will. The less the distance, the lower the fence.

That's one reason why we've always worked so earnestly and faithfully for better roads. The road that brings you nearer to us is the same broad highway that brings us nearer to you. Literally and figuratively it increases efficiency in the delivery of the goods. Another essential to the true spirit of neighborliness.

You'll find the same spirit at this end of the road—in our stores and places of business. Courtesy, desire to please, eagerness to rectify error, sincerity in quality, fairness in price—these are the elements of neighborly dealing which we are constantly striving to improve.

Just call across the fence. We're neighbors, you know.

Thank you.

Another Little Message

about that cup of sugar

RECENTLY we suggested that the essentials of the true spirit of neighborliness were exemplified in the borrowing of a cup of sugar.

Over the back-yard fence is a short cut indeed, to neighborliness. Miles so often are the fences that divide the common ground of mutual understanding and good will. The less the distance, the lower the fence.

That's one reason why we've always worked so earnestly and faithfully for better roads. The road that brings you nearer to us is the same broad highway that brings us nearer to you. Literally and figuratively it increases efficiency in the delivery of the goods. Another essential to the true spirit of neighborliness.

You'll find the same spirit at this end of the road—in our stores and places of business. Courtesy, desire to please, eagerness to rectify error, sincerity in quality, fairness in price—these are the elements of neighborly dealing which we are constantly striving to improve.

Just call across the fence. We're neighbors, you know.

Thank you.

He read several passages from the Bible which he told his auditors supported his stand on the liquor question.

Governor Donahey and the telephone company were attacked by the speaker who asserted the former had failed to take steps to halt rate raises in the state. EXPECT HEAVY PRIMARY VOTE

Numerous Contests Expected to Bring Voters to Polls.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7.—"Our vote at the primary this year will be 10 to 20 per cent heavier than in several past years." Democrats opinions:

"We can only say there will be many close contests. We expect a heavier vote than usual at the primary."— Republican consensus of opinions.

Such were the composite statements of all the headquarters of the 88 candidates seeking nomination on the two tickets at next Tuesday primary having offices here today.

Many of the candidates were out of town, adding finishing touches to the campaign waged in the past few weeks. Others were idly resting on their oars, waiting for the returns to start coming in next Tuesday night. And still others were impatiently seeking a little rest at their homes before going out tonight and Monday for last drives to get votes.

To make guesses as to the outcome would be folly, it was generally felt. Each headquarters predicted victory for its standard bearer. But all were satisfied the vote cast this year will surpass many previous primaries.

Many of the individual campaigns have been arduous. With but little of the old styled "mud slinging" there has been much interest shown.

Conquers English Channel

The first woman to swim the treacherous English channel.

A new cross-channel record of 14 hours and 50 minutes, an hour and 35 minutes better than the record made by Sebastian Tiraboschi, native Italian, in 1923.

These are the chief distinctions attending the remarkable feat of Miss Gertrude Ederle, American girl swimmer, who swam the channel yesterday on her first trial of 1926, which she made only a few days following the failure of Clarabelle Barrett, school teacher.

Miss Ederle took off at Cape Gris Nez and landed at Dover. The distance, in a straight line, is 21 miles, but because of the sweep of the tides, Miss Ederle was forced to swim an S-shaped course of between 35 and 40 miles.

Channel Record Falls

Englishman called out to Miss Ederle as she left the water.

"I feel well enought to swim right back to Cape Griz Nez but I'm not going to," Miss Ederle replied.

Returns to France.

The Ederle party will leave for France on the 4 o'clock boat today, landing at Boulogne where the mayor has informed "Pop" Ederle that he would like to extend to Gertrude an official welcome on Monday.

Miss Ederle plans to spend a week in Paris and then she will go to Germany with "Pop" to visit "Pop's" mother. She plans to leave for New York on the Berengaria on August 21.

Today she was flooded with cablegrams from the United States, France, England and other parts of the world. Many of the messages invited her to attend banquets and offered parades and public demonstrations, leading athletes hailed Gertrude as a super-woman and expressed amazement at her history making achievement.

"I have never known a swimmer, either man or woman, with such grit and powers of endurance as Miss Ederle," said William Burgess, the veteran trans-channel swimmer who trained Miss Ederle.

"When half way across the waves were throwing her about like a cork and I naturally wanted to take her out because I feared her life was being endangered. But she was entirely composed throughout, swimming steadily with a crawl stroke whenever the waves permited."

Tells Own Story.

BY GERTRUDE EDERLE.

(As told to an International News Service Correspondent.)

DOVER, ENGLAND, Aug. 7.—It seemed like ages and ages and then all of a sudden I seemed to wake up and found myself within a few feet of the beach.

It seems like a dream now.

I knew I was right a year ago when I said I would swim the English Channel.

The great point in my swimming it at all was to show that a girl could do it and that an American girl could do it and that I was the American girl.

It all seems very far away now. I went to sleep night before last in my hotel in France and I woke up this morning in Dover, but what happened in between seems unreal.

It was worth doing, just to see how pleased papa is. He promised me a motor car if I did it and now I am going to have it.

I got tired soon after the start but somehow it wore off in mid-channel. They tell me I did the first twelve miles at the rate of two miles an hour.

I felt my worst when I got within sight of England. It was a great encouragement at first but it soon became discouraging because it didn't seem to get any nearer. That was bad for me so I didn't look any more but just kept on swimming.

Once when I was going slowly Burgess and papa came out and told me to stop swimming on account of the storm. I said, 'I am not coming out until I am fetched out and you just try and fetch me out.'

It seemed most difficult when I got close to Dover. The tide suddenly changed and a strong current swept me towards Deal. I felt that the sea was pulling me away from England. I thought I had better not look any more but had better go on swimming as long as I could keep alive.

Then it got dark and the sea seemed a lot more comfortable.

By that time the lard, vaseline and oil had pretty nearly all come off and I was beginning to feel cold.

It seemed ages and ages and then all of a sudden I seemed to wake up with a glow of light and find myself within a few feet of the beach with people dancing before bonfires and cheering.

One thing seemed to pull me through. It was the phonograph on the tug playing, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

I went ashore and here I am. Look at papa, how pleased he is, and I am going to get that roadster and I have proved that a girl, an American girl, can swim the channel.

MAN DIES FROM ALKALI BURNS

Check Bank Accounts Of Persons Involved In Hall-Mills Case

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 7.—Bank accounts of all persons involved in the Hall-Mills murders probe were being checked today to determine if "hush money" had been paid to halt prosecution of persons suspected of being guilty of, or accessories to, the crime.

This action was taken by Patrick Hayes, who is working with Senator Simpson, special prosecutor on the case. It was believed that the fiscal "check up" would bring to a head reports that the silence of important witnesses was bought during the original investigation.

Original statements made by Mrs. Frances Hall and Barbara Tough, servant, have disappeared, it was stated today.

Miss Charlotte Mills, daughter of the murdered chorister, said today that she believes the slayer of her mother would soon be known.

"I hope the person goes to the electric chair," she said.

CONEY ISLAND BETTING HALTED

Track Meet to be Closed by Court Order.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7.—Use of the pari-mutuel system for promotion of race betting at Coney Island race track will be stopped at 7 o'clock tonight by temporary injunction granted early today. It is presumed the Coney meet will be closed, as was that at Thistledown, Cleveland, since operators of the track here have indicated it would be useless to run the races without the betting.

Decision was sent by telegram early today to Clerk of Courts Frank Lewis, from Judge Louis V. Houck, Mt. Vernon, who presided in the special court of appeals which heard the case against the track operators. Judge Houck had communicated by telephone with other members of the special court to get the decision.

The special court, appointed by state court of appeals Judge Wade Cushing consisted, in addition to Judge Houck, of Louis T. Farr, Lisbon, and W. H. Middleton, Waverly, Ohio.

The trio withheld their decision on the injunction and "quo warranto" instituted by Hamilton county prosecutor Charles S. Bell against Coney Island, until after Supreme Court Judge Marshall issued his edict against the Cleveland club.

OHIO LICENSE WAR FEARED

Truck Owners Notified They Must Purchase Kentucky License.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 7. — With notice served on owners of commercial motor vehicles in Cincinnati that a new Kentucky law requiring such vehicles to carry Kentucky, as well as Ohio, license plates will be rigidly enforced beginning next week, a bitter inter-state battle looms.

Cincinnati merchcants, the Cincinnati Automobile club and motorists in general are preparing to fight the issue. Already it has been taken up with Chalmers R. Wilson, Ohio state registrar. Wilson indicated Ohio will retaliate.

The case may also bring battles with other states bordering on Kentucky, and promises to be a duplication of the struggle between the district of Columbia and New Jersey a short time ago.

PROFILOMETER O. K.'S ROAD JOB

Bumps Few and Small on Patterson Contract.

The report of the profilometer reading on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road recently completed by Contractor George B. Patterson of Wellsville shows but one depression or bump of one half inch. Four depressions registered three-sixteenths of an inch and there were 23 depressions registered of five-sixteenths of one inch. This is declared by state highway officials to be an exceptionally good record for a brick highway.

The profilometer is a machine designed by engineers of the state highway department, and is a machine consisting of 16 bicycle wheels, with pneumatic tires, mounted in tandem.

As the profilometer passes over a road it records on a graph similar to the recording thermometers and is so delicately constructed that depressions and bumps can be recorded over one-fourth inch of space in any ten feet.

BEATTY CLOSES HIS CAMPAIGN

Local Gubernatorial Candidate Speaks at Eagles Hall.

James C. B. Beatty, pottery jobber, Democratic gubernatorial aspirant, closed his campaign last night with a meeting in the Eagles' auditorium, Broadway. Approximately 250 persons attended.

Beatty, who was introduced by Ambrose Hancock, secretary of the local aerie of Eagles, after outlining his platform, launched his address by urging the repeal of the Volstead, Miller and Crabbe acts and the eighteenth amendment. He read several passages from the Bible which he told his auditors supported his stand on the liquor question.

Governor Donahey and the telephone company were attacked by the speaker who asserted the former had failed to take steps to halt rate raises in the state. Abolishment of the present pardon board and elimination of 50 per cent of the personnel of the state highway department was promised in the event he was elected governor.

EXPECT HEAVY PRIMARY VOTE

Numerous Contests Expected to Bring Voters to Polls.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 7.—"Our vote at the primary this year will be 10 to 20 per cent heavier than in several past years." Democrats opinions:

"We can only say there will be many close contests. We expect a heavier vote than usual at the primary."— Republican consensus of opinions.

Such were the composite statements of all the headquarters of the 88 candidates seeking nomination on the two tickets at next Tuesday primary having offices here today.

Many of the candidates were out of town, adding finishing touches to the campaign waged in the past few weeks. Others were idly resting on their oars, waiting for the returns to start coming in next Tuesday night. And still others were impatiently seeking a little rest at their homes before going out tonight and Monday for last drives to get votes.

To make guesses as to the outcome would be folly, it was generally felt. Each headquarters predicted victory for its standard bearer. But all were satisfied the vote cast this year will surpass many previous primaries.

Many of the individual campaigns have been arduous. With but little of the old styled "mud slinging" there has been much interest shown.

been destroyed, and billions of lives wiped out, that would mean nothing at all. We are provincial.

The strange thing is that China, with half a billion population, labor costing practically nothing, has endured floods and calamities for thousands of years and never found a way to neutralize the floods.

Labor spent on the great Chinese wall to keep out barbarians, and that did not keep them out, would have made the Yangtze safe.

A BRITISH diplomat announces that in the next war, not submarines but airplanes, will terrorize commercial shipping. The order will be "sink at sight," and "the illegality of such attacks will be entirely immaterial."

We're so rich that we can't think like the prize pig at the fair, whose fat is too much for its brain.

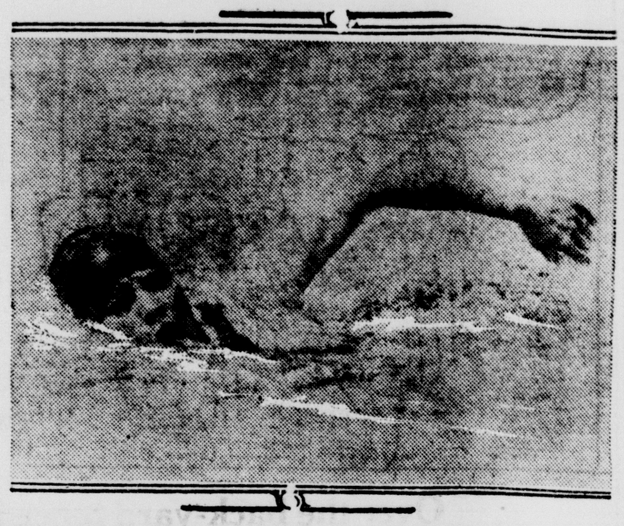
Conquers English Channel



The first woman to swim the treacherous English channel.

A new cross-channel record of 14 hours and 50 minutes, an hour and 35 minutes better than the record made by Sebastian Tiraboschi, native Italian, in 1923.

These are the chief distinctions attending the remarkable feat of Miss Gertrude Ederle, American girl swimmer, who swam the channel yesterday on her first trial of 1926, which she made only a few days following the failure of Clarabelle Barrett, school teacher.

Miss Ederle took off at Cape Gris Nez and landed at Dover. The distance, in a straight line, is 21 miles, but because of the sweep of the tides, Miss Ederle was forced to swim an S-shaped course of between 35 and 40 miles.

Channel Record Falls

Englishman called out to Miss Ederle as she left the water.

"I feel well enought to swim right back to Cape Griz Nez but I'm not going to," Miss Ederle replied.

Returns to France.

The Ederle party will leave for France on the 4 o'clock boat today, landing at Boulogne where the mayor has informed "Pop" Ederle that he would like to extend to Gertrude an official welcome on Monday.

Miss Ederle plans to spend a week in Paris and then she will go to Germany with "Pop" to visit "Pop's" mother. She plans to leave for New York on the Berengaria on August 21.

Today she was flooded with cablegrams from the United States, France, England and other parts of the world. Many of the messages invited her to attend banquets and offered parades and public demonstrations, leading athletes hailed Gertrude as a super-woman and expressed amazement at her history making achievement.

"I have never known a swimmer, either man or woman, with such grit and powers of endurance as Miss Ederle," said William Burgess, the veteran trans-channel swimmer who trained Miss Ederle.

"When half way across the waves were throwing her about like a cork and I naturally wanted to take her out because I feared her life was being endangered. But she was entirely composed throughout, swimming steadily with a crawl stroke whenever the waves permited."

Tells Own Story.
BY GERTRUDE EDERLE.

(As told to an International News Service Correspondent.)

DOVER, ENGLAND, Aug. 7.—It seemed like ages and ages and then all of a sudden I seemed to wake up and found myself within a few feet of the beach.

It seems like a dream now.

I knew I was right a year ago when I said I would swim the English Channel.

The great point in my swimming it at all was to show that a girl could do it and that an American girl could do it and that I was the American girl.

It all seems very far away now. I went to sleep night before last in my hotel in France and I woke up this morning in Dover, but what happened in between seems unreal.

It was worth doing, just to see how pleased papa is. He promised me a motor car if I did it and now I am going to have it.

I got tired soon after the start but somehow it wore off in mid-channel. They tell me I did the first twelve miles at the rate of two miles an hour.

I felt my worst when I got within sight of England. It was a great encouragement at first but it soon became discouraging because it didn't seem to get any nearer. That was bad for me so I didn't look any more but just kept on swimming.

Once when I was going slowly Burgess and papa came out and told me to stop swimming on account of the storm. I said, 'I am not coming out until I am fetched out and you just try and fetch me out.'

It seemed most difficult when I got close to Dover. The tide suddenly changed and a strong current swept me towards Deal. I felt that the sea was pulling me away from England. I thought I had better not look any more but had better go on swimming as long as I could keep alive.

Then it got dark and the sea seemed a lot more comfortable.

By that time the lard, vaseline and oil had pretty nearly all come off and I was beginning to feel cold.

It seemed ages and ages and then all of a sudden I seemed to wake up with a glow of light and find myself within a few feet of the beach with people dancing before bonfires and cheering.

One thing seemed to pull me through. It was the phonograph on the tug playing, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

I went ashore and here I am. Look at papa, how pleased he is, and I am going to get that roadster and I have proved that a girl, an American girl, can swim the channel.

MAN DIES FROM ALKALI BURNS

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 7. — Henry Rowland, died early today, the result of a most grim tragedy. Rowland's clothes caught fire when a blow torch exploded. He jumped into a tank of alkali thinking it water and was scalded.

Check Bank Accounts Of Persons Involved In Hall-Mills Case

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 7.—Bank accounts of all persons involved in the Hall-Mills murders probe were being checked today to determine if "hush money" had been paid to halt prosecution of persons suspected of being guilty of, or accessories to, the crime.

This action was taken by Patrick Hayes, who is working with Senator Simpson, special prosecutor on the case. It was believed that the fiscal "check up" would bring to a head reports that the silence of important witnesses was bought during the original investigation.

Original statements made by Mrs. Frances Hall and Barbara Tough, servant, have disappeared, it was stated today.

Miss Charlotte Mills, daughter of the murdered chorister, said today that she believes the slayer of her mother would soon be known.

"I hope the person goes to the electric chair," she said.

CONEY ISLAND BETTING HALTED

Track Meet to be Closed by Court Order.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7.—Use of the pari-mutual system for promotion of race betting at Coney Island race track will be stopped at 7 o'clock tonight by temporary injunction granted early today. It is presumed the Coney meet will be closed, as was that at Thistledown, Cleveland, since operators of the track here have indicated it would be useless to run the races without the betting.

Decision was sent by telegram early today to Clerk of Courts Frank Lewis, from Judge Louis V. Houck, Mt. Vernon, who presided in the special court of appeals which heard the case against the track operators. Judge Houck had communicated by telephone with other members of the special court to get the decision.

The special court, appointed by state court of appeals Judge Wade Cushing consisted, in addition to Judge Houck, of Louis T. Farr, Lisbon, and W. H. Middleton, Waverly, Ohio.

The trio withheld their decision on the injunction and "quo warranto" instituted by Hamilton county prosecutor Charles S. Bell against Coney Island, until after Supreme Court Judge Marshall issued his edict against the Cleveland club.

OHIO LICENSE WAR FEARED

Truck Owners Notified They Must Purchase Kentucky License.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 7. — With notice served on owners of commercial motor vehicles in Cincinnati that a new Kentucky law requiring such vehicles to carry Kentucky, as well as Ohio, license plates will be rigidly enforced beginning next week, a bitter inter-state battle looms.

Cincinnati merchcants, the Cincinnati Automobile club and motorists in general are preparing to fight the issue. Already it has been taken up with Chalmers R. Wilson, Ohio state registrar. Wilson indicated Ohio will retaliate.

The case may also bring battles with other states bordering on Kentucky, and promises to be a duplication of the struggle between the district of Columbia and New Jersey a short time ago.

Jefferson County Commissioner Run Down by Automobile

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 7.—William Cheffy, 56, former county commissioner, was run down by an automobile while on the way to work early today receiving injuries which attending physcians fear will be fatal. Several ribs were broken.

PROFILOMETER O. K.'S ROAD JOB

Bumps Few and Small on Patterson Contract.

The report of the profilometer reading on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road recently completed by Contractor George B. Patterson of Wellsville shows but one depression or bump of one half inch. Four depressions registered three-sixteenths of an inch and there were 23 depressions registered of five-sixteenths of one inch. This is declared by state highway officials to be an exceptionally good record for a brick highway.

The profilometer is a machine designed by engineers of the state highway department, and is a machine consisting of 16 bicycle wheels, with pneumatic tires, mounted in tandem.

As the profilometer passes over a road it records on a graph similar to the recording thermometers and is so delicately constructed that depressions and bumps can be recorded over one-fourth inch of space in any ten feet.

MILTON SILLS AT AMERICAN

Thrilling Battle Scenes in Picture, "Puppets."

Thrilling battle scenes, Milton Sills and Francis McDonald battling wildly with each other in a burning theatre with the flaming scenery falling all about them, Gertrude Olmstead standing by watching two men fight for her while the flames threaten their lives—these are but a few of the thrills that will be seen in First National's latest photoplay, "Puppets," which comes next week to the American theatre. Sills has the stellar role, with Miss Olmstead as his leading lady.

"Puppets" is laid in the heart of New York's lowest East Side and on the battlefields of the World War, and no pains or expense have been spared to give the motion picture public a piece of realism they will long remember. It was produced by Al Rockett, who, with his brother, Ray, produced the great picture, "Abraham Lincoln." It was directed by George Archainbaud, who learned his war realism in France as a fighting officer. Heading the great cast is Milton Sills. Supporting him are Miss Olmstead, Francis McDonald, Matilde Comont, William Ricciardi, Lucien Prival, Nick Thompson and others.

ROAD LOCATION TO BE CHANGED

St. Clair Township Will Benefit Under New Plan.

An application is to be filed with the county commissioners by the trustees of St. Clair township, asking that the former recommendation of the trustees relating to the location of the No. 1 secondary road in that township be changed to the Oak Grove campground road, extending from the Lincoln highway to Cannons Mills.

St. Clair township at this time has not sufficient funds available to take advantage of the $1,000 now in the county treasury under the Green law for secondary road construction, but the trustees have been informed by property owners on this road that they will raise the $1,000 themselves and also pay the assessments levied, in order that the $1,000 now in the county treasury can be used.

This road taps the Lincoln highway 500 feet north of Stop 55 on the Y. & O. railroad and extends eastward to Cannons Mills, where it taps the new East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

Immediately upon receipt of this recommendation by the county commissioners, the latter will then make a similar recommendation for a change to the state highway department.

By this plan, St. Clair township will secure additional mileage improved without any cost to the township unit.

Fred George Seeks County Treasurer's Place at Primaries

Fred George

Fred George, who is a candidate for county treasurer at the primary election next Tuesday, Aug. 10, has been a lifelong Republican. He was born on a farm on the Lincoln Highway in Madison township. He served as income tax collector, and maintained his headquarters in the East Liverpool postoffice, where he made many friends who are now supporting his candidacy for county treasurer.

This schooling fits neatly into his candidacy, as his nomination and election assures a man of high type and experience in this important office.

MILTON CALHOUN GRANTED DIVORCE

In the divorce action of Milton D. Calhoun against his wife, Edna Calhoun, the action being contested, a decree was awarded the plaintiff on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The court has ordered in this case, however, that Calhoun pay his wife $6 per week beginning at once for the support of his minor child, and in addition Mrs. Calhoun has been granted possession of all household goods. Money that may be obtained later from the sale of real estate is to be divided equally between the parties, and the equity in certain real estate in East Liverpool has also been awarded by the court to Mrs. Calhoun.

DEPUTY GAME WARDEN NAMED

Lon W. Boring Appointed to Succeed Late William Toot.

Lon W. Boring, of Lisbon, has been appointed deputy game warden for Columbiana and Mahoning counties, succeeding to the office following a vacancy created by the death some months ago of William Toot.

Mr. Boring was sworn in by Clerk of Courts Ballantine, and went into Mahoning county where he has been assigned by the state department of agriculture to make a special investigation of several cases recently called to the attention of the department.

The appointment was made by Secretary of Agriculture Truax Monday last when Mr. Boring was called to Columbus for a conference.

Contest for this appointment has been rather keen since the death of Mr. Toot. The Department of Agriculture made it plain, however, that only active men would be considered as applicants, and that the age of applicants would prove an important factor in making an appointment.

Woman Granted Divorce.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, a decree of divorce has been handed down by Judge Spence to Barbara E. Yaun, in her action against her husband Samuel W. Yaun. The court has also made an order restoring the plaintiff to her maiden name, that of Barbara Ellen Willis.

Court Issues Ruling.

In the case of J. H. Lozer and others against William Woodward and others, Judge W. H. Spence has rendered a judgment for the plaintiff, and has decreed that unless the judgment is not paid within 10 days, the property in question will be sold according to law.

Judgment Granted.

A. O. Davis has been granted a judgment on a cognovit note for $90.51 in common pleas court against A. M. Halverstadt, and has also obtained judgment on another similar note for $542.29 against A. M. Halverstadt and others. Judgment for the amount of two notes and for the costs in each case was rendered on confession.

Decree Issued.

A decree of partition has been allowed by the court as prayed for in the case now pending between Della S. Russell against Lester Syme.

Sale Confirmed.

A sale has been confirmed in the case o fthe Keystone Pipe & Supply Co., against The Miller-Waldron Oil company.

Granted Leave to File.

The court has granted Pauline Leads, defendant in an action filed against her and others by Frank Yurkas, leave to file her answer to the petition at once.

Divorce Granted.

Gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty was charged in the petition for divorce filed in common pleas court by Tersa Rose against her husband John A. Rose. The decree was granted the plaintiff upon the payment of costs.

Case Passed.

The case of Irene Lutton against George R. Lutton, which was to have been heard in common pleas court has been passed until Aug. 13th. by consent of the parties concerned.

The Wonderful Overland Story

Do you want a car that will do:
55 flashing, brilliant miles an hour . . . in comfort
that will pickup in 21 seconds from 5 to 40 miles an hour
that will turn in a 40-foot circle
that will stop in a split second . . .

Then, here's a performance "thrill" you'll never forget

EIGHTEEN months ago we announced a revolutionary new-type car . . . the Overland Six that has become world-famous.

Measured by present demand it is the most successful car of its class ever created.

This car embodies the most advanced engineering practice from both sides of the world.

In many respects it is entirely different from conventional automobiles as youknow them.

It is a low car . . . the most powerful of its size and weight . . . based on recent scientific investigations.

40 to 55 miles an hour is its comfortable driving speed.

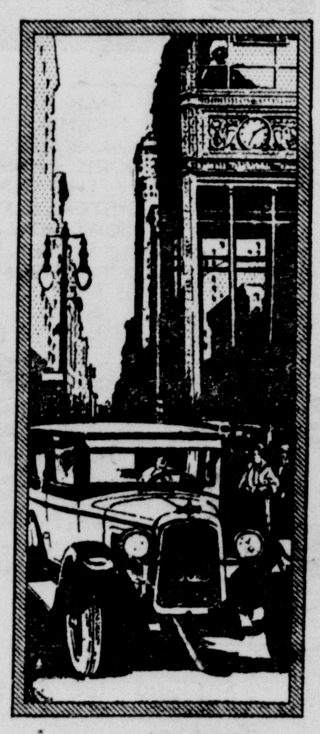
Acceleration tests show 5 to 40 miles in 21 seconds.

And owners everywhere report hill climbing ability that defies description.

Modern engineering . . . the reason

This wonderful performance ability of the Overland Six is the direct result of modern engineering.

It is new all through. Brilliantly designed as a unit. Not an old-fashioned reconstructed chassis.



Many cars have been "modern" too long. We mean just what we imply.

Remember, the comfort, riding quality and power of any automobile are first determined on the drafting board.

Long life starts with engineering.

A car that was designed over 3 or 4 years ago, cannot meet themodern standards of today.

You want performance. You want comfort. You want the long life that only modern engineering can supply.

Then decide today to drive this new-type Overland Six. Already over 100,000 owners have found in it their utmost ideal of what a truly modern car should be.

Simply in fairness to yourself see the Overland Six. May we arrange a demonstration?

NOTE:—4-wheel brakes are furnished at slight extra cost. Other models: Touring, $895; Coupe, $895; DeLuxe Sedan, $1095.

THERE IS NO SATURATION POINT FOR HONEST VALUE

Honest value is a priceless commodity. Every purchaser seeks it, but not always with complete success.

During periods of careful buying he takes unusual pains to find it, and products of inferior merit fail to attract his patronage.

Reports then circulate that the "saturation point" in the automobile market has been reached, when in reality there will NEVER be a saturation point for honest value.

During the first six months of this year, for instance, Dodge Brothers sold 207,115 motor cars and trucks. This represents a gain of 49.3 per cent over the first six months of 1925, and continues Dodge Brothers in the enviable position of THIRD IN THE INDUSTRY.

For the three weeks ending July 17th, 23,862 motor cars and trucks were delivered to customers—an increase of 62.4 per cent over the same period last year, and impressive evidence that Dodge Brothers great sales gain is continuing through the quiet weeks of mid-summer.

The more carefully people investigate and compare, detail by detail, the factors that constitute genuine motor car value, the more inevitably Dodge Brothers market expands, and will continue to expand, year after year.

Laughlin's Fifth Frame Rally Deadlocks Game With Chester

Missed Third Strike Enables McCoy Club to Score Tying Run

Overcome Three-run Lead Held by 1925 Champs in Last Minute Spurt With Babb Tripling and Briggle and Parsons Singling.

WITH the count 5 to 2 against them, Laughlin came back against Chester in the fifth and final period of the City Industrial League contest at Newell park last evening and by bunching three hits scored three runs which evened the situation at a 5 to 5 verdict as darkness enveloped the field.

Briggle, who had done the hurling for Laughlin, opened the crucial interim with a single. Parsons followed with a safe drive to right. Both finished as Babb tripled. Then M. Cebula supplanted Stoffel. It was his job to save the game with the score 5 to 4 and none out.

It was all but dark as Chester's premier took up the burden. He fanned the three men that faced him which ordinarily would have given his club the victory but Potts missed the third strike on Finley. This necessitated an assist to Heckathorne which, momentarily delayed, gave Babb just time to dash under the first bagman's quick return, tying the score. Mike then faced the task of maintaining the tie and this he accomplished with his speed ball.

Honors were accordingly even in that Laughlin, by the great rally all but won while Chester, unable to maintain the early lead, refused to let their opponents pass. The tie will thus mean a possible replaying of the game.

Babb was the batting hero of the game with a single and triple in three chances, the final blow making possible the tie, he himself scoring the latter run. At first he also played snappy ball where he accepted eight chances.

Bubin, with a double and a single in two chances had a perfect swatting mark for the day.

W. Watson, fielding brilliantly, accepted six chances at second for Laughlin.

P. Cebula, with two singles in three attempts, led Chester with the bat.

Catcher Hunselman was struck by a ball in the hand during the contest and had a finger torn, but gamely returned to work after first aid was administered.

In attendance was one of the largest crowds that has this year assembled at league games anywhere. The diamond was entirely surrounded by automobiles several deep while the open spaces beyond left and back of the first base line were veritable parking places.

Chester scored one run and had three men left on the bases in the first. Evans opened with a walk off Briggle. F. Marshall, sacrificing was safe as Briggle, fielding the ball, threw late to Finley on second. P. Cebula beat out a bunt. Wilde lined to Briggle, who assisted to Hunselman, retiring Evans at the plate. L. McMath walked, forcing F. Marshall home. Potts fouled to Babb and Heckathorne flew to Finley.

Finley doubled beyond the parked cars in left in the first after Babb had fanned and Parsons had skied to P. Cebula. Herbert lined to P. Cebula, who assisted to Heckathorne on a bound, the ball getting by him, permitting Finley to score. W. Watson went out, Stoffel to Heckathorne.

Wyant and Stoffel singled consecutively to middle. Evans went out, W. Watson to Babb. F. Marshall singled to right, scoring Wyant and Stoffel, but was caught going to second, Bubin to Hunselman to Finley. P. Cebula singled to middle as did Wilde. On a double steal, the former finished and Wilde reached third on Hunselman's overthrow. L. McMath flew to Finley.

Bubin doubled to right in the second after Aufderheide had flown to F. Marshall. Hunselman singled to middle, scoring Bubin. Briggle knocked into a double play. P. Cebula to L. McMath to Heckathorne.

Wilde, hit by Briggle in the fifth, reached second as L. McMath went out, W. Watson to Babb. He stole third and counted as Potts was retired, W. Watson to Babb. Heckathorne walked.

ACE HUDKINS FOOLS "WISE MONEY" AGAIN

Pulls Out Draw With Highly Rated Loayzo

"Smart Coin" Goes in on Chilean Fighter at Prevailing Odds and the Boys Thought They Were Really Set for Killing.

By Davis J Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—In a moment of inspiration and probably lacking something better to do, some one called him Ace Hudkins, and were they to thumb through the entire deck of fifty-two cards, they might have been more thorough and less appropriate. In the event that I have not made myself sufficiently clear, what I wish to infer is that I think the kid is clever.

Twice, now, he has had his chance to finish second according to the wishes of the so-called wise Broadway money and twice has he fooled both the money and the men who bet it.

A comparative few weeks ago, they sent him in with Ruby Goldstein, and they were so sure that everything was all right that some of them started to collect their bets in the lobby without going to the annoyance of witnessing the conventional and perfunctory destruction of the young man in question.

Last night they turned the fellow loose again and this time he got a draw with Stanislaus Loayza, supposedly the greatest lightweight who never held the title. He got a draw but if he didn't win that fight then the writer doesn't know his onions, and doesn't want to know them. Hudkins came home on the bit, a winner by ten lengths. But boys will pull one out of the hat every now and then and last night they were about due.

Still Passing the Hat.

I am duly aware of the fact that Hudkins was a 6 to 5 favorite but that was beyond the point. The "smart" money went in on Loayza at the prevailing odds and the boys really thought they were set for a killing. They knew this Hudkins bird had lined up the saps behind him with his knockout over Goldstein; so they sat back and took every dollar that evinced a desire to travel. The business went in reverse, and for the second time Hudkins went home with the knowledge that he owed Broadway a collection.

They still were passing the hat this morning.

But, as far as I am concerned, they won't have to do it for Hudkins. He is the uncrowned lightweight champion.

Loayza is a good boy but Hudkins is a better one and they will remain until death do them part. Hudkins is as tough as the opposite side of a hard boiled egg.

Sid Terris has been trying to take the play away from all comers, but for Sidney's sake. I would hate to see him go so far wrong as to place his portico in juxtaposition with Hudkins' good right hand. The incident simply would lead to unpleasant circumstances urn Tables on Down-river Club in 10-1 Verdict.

TURK-NASH, defeated by Wellsville on Thursday, turned on the down river aggregation at Central park and won the City Industrial league contest between the two last evening, 10 to 1.

Deshler held the losing contingent to five hits and a single run in the seven innings of play. He fanned five and passed one. He also batted at a .667 clip with two safe blows in three attempts.

Patterson started to pitch for Wellsville but lasted but one and two-thirds innings when Meyer, who had won from the Motors the night before, went in. He, however was found for six runs.

Meyer did some hitting himself, though, collecting a single and a double in three chances and led his club with the stick.

E. Bailey, batting at a .400 clip and Earl Mundy at .750 with his three bingles in four tries, through which he scored three runs, vied with Deshler for swatting honors for Turk-Nash.

J. Watson had a perfect batting figure, walking twice, singling once, having a sacrifice and scoring three runs.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,

"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Often you see golfers who begin their back swing with a pronounced twisting to the right of the entire body. That's all wrong. Such a player is beginning his swing with his body, whereas it should begin with control of the club in the hands. The hands move first, the body follows. There should be practically no consciousness of the body exertions until just before the ball is hit, when you do throw in the body. This results, however, more as the releasing of an accumulation of force, the body going with the clubhead against the ball. You cannot start a back swing with a body twist because you cannot swing a golf club with your body. You swing it with the hands and arms, just as you would crack a whip or throw a ball.

Laughlin's Fifth Frame Rally Deadlocks Game With Chester

Missed Third Strike Enables McCoy Club to Score Tying Run

Overcome Three-run Lead Held by 1925 Champs in Last Minute Spurt With Babb Tripling and Briggle and Parsons Singling.

WITH the count 5 to 2 against them, Laughlin came back against Chester in the fifth and final period of the City Industrial League contest at Newell park last evening and by bunching three hits scored three runs which evened the situation at a 5 to 5 verdict as darkness enveloped the field.

Briggle, who had done the hurling for Laughlin, opened the crucial interim with a single. Parsons followed with a safe drive to right. Both finished as Babb tripled. Then M. Cebula supplanted Stoffel. It was his job to save the game with the score 5 to 4 and none out.

It was all but dark as Chester's premier took up the burden. He fanned the three men that faced him which ordinarily would have given his club the victory but Potts missed the third strike on Finley. This necessitated an assist to Heckathorne which, momentarily delayed, gave Babb just time to dash under the first bagman's quick return, tying the score. Mike then faced the task of maintaining the tie and this he accomplished with his speed ball.

Honors were accordingly even in that Laughlin, by the great rally all but won while Chester, unable to maintain the early lead, refused to let their opponents pass. The tie will thus mean a possible replaying of the game.

Babb was the batting hero of the game with a single and triple in three chances, the final blow making possible the tie, he himself scoring the latter run. At first he also played snappy ball where he accepted eight chances.

Bubin, with a double and a single in two chances had a perfect swatting mark for the day.

W. Watson, fielding brilliantly, accepted six chances at second for Laughlin.

P. Cebula, with two singles in three attempts, led Chester with the bat.

Catcher Hunselman was struck by a ball in the hand during the contest and had a finger torn, but gamely returned to work after first aid was administered.

In attendance was one of the largest crowds that has this year assembled at league games anywhere. The diamond was entirely surrounded by automobiles several deep while the open spaces beyond left and back of the first base line were veritable parking places.

Chester scored one run and had three men left on the bases in the first. Evans opened with a walk off Briggle. F. Marshall, sacrificing was safe as Briggle, fielding the ball, threw late to Finley on second. P. Cebula beat out a bunt. Wilde lined to Briggle, who assisted to Hunselman, retiring Evans at the plate. L. McMath walked, forcing F. Marshall home. Potts fouled to Babb and Heckathorne flew to Finley.

Finley doubled beyond the parked cars in left in the first after Babb had fanned and Parsons had skied to P. Cebula. Herbert lined to P. Cebula, who assisted to Heckathorne on a bound, the ball getting by him, permitting Finley to score. W. Watson went out, Stoffel to Heckathorne.

Wyant and Stoffel singled consecutively to middle. Evans went out, W. Watson to Babb. F. Marshall singled to right, scoring Wyant and Stoffel, but was caught going to second, Bubin to Hunselman to Finley. P. Cebula singled to middle as did Wilde. On a double steal, the former finished and Wilde reached third on Hunselman's overthrow. L. McMath flew to Finley.

Bubin doubled to right in the second after Aufderheide had flown to F. Marshall. Hunselman singled to middle, scoring Bubin. Briggle knocked into a double play. P. Cebula to L. McMath to Heckathorne.

Wilde, hit by Briggle in the fifth, reached second as L. McMath went out, W. Watson to Babb. He stole third and counted as Potts was retired, W. Watson to Babb. Heckathorne walked.

TURK-NASH WINS AT WELLSVILLE

urn Tables on Down-river Club in 10-1 Verdict.

TURK-NASH, defeated by Wellsville on Thursday, turned on the down river aggregation at Central park and won the City Industrial league contest between the two last evening, 10 to 1.

Deshler held the losing contingent to five hits and a single run in the seven innings of play. He fanned five and passed one. He also batted at a .667 clip with two safe blows in three attempts.

Patterson started to pitch for Wellsville but lasted but one and two-thirds innings when Meyer, who had won from the Motors the night before, went in. He, however was found for six runs.

Meyer did some hitting himself, though, collecting a single and a double in three chances and led his club with the stick.

E. Bailey, batting at a .400 clip and Earl Mundy at .750 with his three bingles in four tries, through which he scored three runs, vied with Deshler for swatting honors for Turk-Nash.

J. Watson had a perfect batting figure, walking twice, singling once, having a sacrifice and scoring three runs.

Pulls Out Draw With Highly Rated Loayzo

"Smart Coin" Goes in on Chilean Fighter at Prevailing Odds and the Boys Thought They Were Really Set for Killing.

By Davis J Walsh.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—In a moment of inspiration and probably lacking something better to do, some one called him Ace Hudkins, and were they to thumb through the entire deck of fifty-two cards, they might have been more thorough and less appropriate. In the event that I have not made myself sufficiently clear, what I wish to infer is that I think the kid is clever.

Twice, now, he has had his chance to finish second according to the wishes of the so-called wise Broadway money and twice has he fooled both the money and the men who bet it.

A comparative few weeks ago, they sent him in with Ruby Goldstein, and they were so sure that everything was all right that some of them started to collect their bets in the lobby without going to the annoyance of witnessing the conventional and perfunctory destruction of the young man in question.

Last night they turned the fellow loose again and this time he got a draw with Stanislaus Loayza, supposedly the greatest lightweight who never held the title. He got a draw but if he didn't win that fight then the writer doesn't know his onions, and doesn't want to know them. Hudkins came home on the bit, a winner by ten lengths. But boys will pull one out of the hat every now and then and last night they were about due.

Still Passing the Hat.

I am duly aware of the fact that Hudkins was a 6 to 5 favorite but that was beyond the point. The "smart" money went in on Loayza at the prevailing odds and the boys really thought they were set for a killing. They knew this Hudkins bird had lined up the saps behind him with his knockout over Goldstein; so they sat back and took every dollar that evinced a desire to travel. The business went into reverse, and for the second time Hudkins went home with the knowledge that he owed Broadway a collection.

They still were passing the hat this morning.

But, as far as I am concerned, they won't have to do it for Hudkins. He is the uncrowned lightweight champion.

Loayza is a good boy but Hudkins is a better one and they will remain until death do them part. Hudkins is as tough as the opposite side of a hard boiled egg.

Sid Terris has been trying to take the play away from all comers, but for Sidney's sake. I would hate to see him go so far wrong as to place his portico in juxtaposition with Hudkins' good right hand. The incident simply would lead to unpleasant circumstances the Chinese will listen to this Russian propaganda, which is said to be widespread and well financed, no one can predict.

Haskin's Letter

While silk exports have increased and other exports from China to the United States have relatively held their own, numerous articles could be sold to us in greatly increased quantity if the Chinese were better organized to produce them and ship them. Antimony, for example is in large demand, but Chinese miners and exporters are not increasing their output. The same is true of wood oil. And if China will not buy, she can not continue indefinitely to sell.

Efforts of ambassadors and government commercial agents to stimulate trade through contacts with the central government of China are of no avail because that government has practically no authority. The local bosses are maintaining separate governments, and the North China Herald recently summed up the political situation of China in describing Sun Chuan-fang's procedure of consolidating five East Coast provinces into what amounts to a kingdom of his own. Said the Herald:

"There is absolutely no logical, moral, or constitutional reason why he should not construct a kingdom for himself, and if he governs wisely, every reason, from the standpoint of the people under him, why he should."

The same newspaper suggests that the foreign diplomats are wasting their breath carrying on tea parties with officials at Peking, and that if they want any action to improve conditions for the commercial interests of their nations, they may as well negotiate agreements with the separate war lords.

Sun Chuan-fang has expressed about the same idea, although he does not repudiate the central government, but merely does not honor it with any particular attention, pay it any taxes, or take any orders from it. The ambassadors from China to foreign lands theoretically represent the central government, but actually it is hrad to tell whether they represent any one.

A small amount of customs from some ports still gets into the central treasury and keeps a semblance of officialdom going at Peking with a similar small amount of taxes, but generally speaking China is running along on the centuries old customs and traditions and industrious habits of her people, with no national government at all. Probably no other country on earth could do this and survive.

Haskin's Letter

the Chinese will listen to this Russian propaganda, which is said to be widespread and well financed, no one can predict.

While silk exports have increased and other exports from China to the United States have relatively held their own, numerous articles could be sold to us in greatly increased quantity if the Chinese were better organized to produce them and ship them. Antimony, for example is in large demand, but Chinese miners and exporters are not increasing their output. The same is true of wood oil. And if China will not buy, she can not continue indefinitely to sell.

Efforts of ambassadors and government commercial agents to stimulate trade through contacts with the central government of China are of no avail because that government has practically no authority. The local bosses are maintaining separate governments, and the North China Herald recently summed up the political situation of China in describing Sun Chuan-fang's procedure of consolidating five East Coast provinces into what amounts to a kingdom of his own. Said the Herald:

"There is absolutely no logical, moral, or constitutional reason why he should not construct a kingdom for himself, and if he governs wisely, every reason, from the standpoint of the people under him, why he should."

The same newspaper suggests that the foreign diplomats are wasting their breath carrying on tea parties with officials at Peking, and that if they want any action to improve conditions for the commercial interests of their nations, they may as well negotiate agreements with the separate war lords.

Sun Chuan-fang has expressed about the same idea, although he does not repudiate the central government, but merely does not honor it with any particular attention, pay it any taxes, or take any orders from it. The ambassadors from China to foreign lands theoretically represent the central government, but actually it is hrad to tell whether they represent any one.

A small amount of customs from some ports still gets into the central treasury and keeps a semblance of officialdom going at Peking with a similar small amount of taxes, but generally speaking China is running along on the centuries old customs and traditions and industrious habits of her people, with no national government at all. Probably no other country on earth could do this and survive.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE.

Louise was blowing her nose. "There is," she agreed gently. They moved hesitantly into the disorderly living-room: Bee's wardrobe trunk standing open, clothing thrown across the center table, books and framed photographs in a heap on the couch. "We try to make ourselves believe, here in the Village, that love is cerebral," Lou murmured without turning. "But apparently it isn't." She heard her own voice but didn't listen. Odd that she hadn't observed that mess when she first went into the room. Or had she? It was confusing. But the whole day had been that. What about their plans What about the world given to Des Plaines and the pretty firm opposition of Mr. Hargrove? She'd had a lot to tell Bee about that. For once in her life she'd felt the need of advice, or at least of talking out. She seemed lately to have been losing, day by day, her decision of character. Something, disheartening about that. But crying was no good. . . .Had Bee forgotten their exultant opportunity? It almost seemed so. And it couldn't be discussed now, not with this deeply changed Bee. She'd brush it aside.

So Delia, perhaps, was dying, in their little bedroom. This was a thought that plumbed the soul. . . . Death. Or a living tragedy. And Arthur!

There was a heavy step. The doctor came out.

Bee, speaking out of the hush that enveloped the two girls, asked quickly: "Is there any hope?"

The man stood a moment looking critically at the faded wallpaper. He compressed his lips.

Lou dug her nails into her palms, and stared at him. Why didn't he say something?

"Yes," it finally came. "Yes a little."

Then he went off down the stairs.

Bee was clearing off the couch. The books and pictures she stacked in a corner. "You'll have to sleep here,' 'she said. "I brought out some of your things. They're in the wicker chair."

Lou, perched on a corner of the center table, watched her.

"What do you figure you're going to do?" Both voices were hushed.

"Oh, I shan't get to bed tonight. You see, that, doctor wanted two nurses, but I've been helping this one, watching just what she did, and I could call her in a pinch."

Don't be silly, Bee. We'll get another nurse."

"Well—I've had to consider the cost a little. No telling what it will run to. And I feel equal to anything. Honest.

Louise lit a cigarette as an aid to thought.

"We'll have another nurse. What's the doctor's number?"

"I wrote it down. It's under the phone. Just move it, if you really—"

Louise promptly disposed of that matter. Then she remarked, still puzzling her way through a confusion of impulses and swift thoughts: "We've got to talk. Sit down. You make me nervous." Bee obeyed. "How about her folks?"

"She begged me not to tell them."

"Yes, but—"

"I know. We've got to."

"Of course. Have you got the address?"

"No." Bee considered the problem. "I wonder—maybe it's in one of my college books. The Annual, or something. They're in my trunk—in there." She indicated the bedroom. "Though come to think of it, her father's initials wouldn't be there, or the street address."

"I'd figure out some way to wire as soon as you can. Her people have rights, you know."

Bee nodded. "They'll come tearing down here tomorrow. It'll be rather awful—coming into this tragic mess."

"I don't imagine they have any spare money."

"No. Delia had to work, you know, up there. She partly worked her way through college, too. I'll tell you, Lou—of course, I've been thinking things over pretty fast today. You've got to help with this."

"Of course."

"You can send something back from California. Thank heaven you've got a real job. I'd have gone ahead, anyway. I had no choice. But I've banked on you."

"I don't know that I'll go to California. I've got a perfectly good job here."

"Of course you'll go!"

"The idea was to go together."

"Nonsense. Of course it would have been nice, but you can't throw down a chance like that. You've got to go on."

"The fun's gone out of it." Lou watched the smoke curling up from her cigarette. After a little she remarked, musingly—a casual sentence that was no more than a chip floating by on the flood of her thoughts: "This is Thursday night." She pulled herself together and glanced at the watch on her wrist. "Three-thirty. Hum! I thought it was about seven.

"I'm going up after Arthur about five, Lou. He ought to turn up at Joe's toward the end of the afternoon. I wonder if you'd mind sticking here."

"Of course I'll stay—though I'm still doubtful of that move."

"Well"—Bee got up—"it's what I get out of watching Delia and thinking about what she was able to say. There's just one thing that will put a little fight into her, or a little hope, at least; and that's marriage. It's all she can see."

"Oh!" mused Lou. Then: "He'll never do that."

"Perhaps he'll have to. One thing I've been thinking—I'd like some practical advice—oh, about the law, all that. But I can't think of anybody, unless it's—"

Lou interrupted quickly: "Fred Kendall?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Mr. Hargrove would be perfect, but after what I've gone through with him today, I don't know about asking this of him."

"I'll try Fred." Bee came over to the telephone, then turned to her friend with that intently sober look and remarked gently: I've been a crazy sort of child, I'm afraid. A thing like this shakes me so. Of course I'll talk with him. He IS practical, and he probably can help." She called his apartment.

"Funny," she said, a hand clapped over the receiver, "he's moved. They don't apear to know where."

"Try the airplane company."

"Of course." They had the address. "Hm! Over in West Fifty-sixth street. He HAS tumbled in the world." It took an hour to find his voice over the wires of the complicated city. During that time Lou busied herself rehanging the pictures and straightening out the room. The doctor appeared again, followed shortly by the second nurse. At five Bee hurried uptown to meet Fred.
